CHRISTMAS TRUCE IS ASKED BY POPE

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 3 (AP)—Pope Pius XII asked warring powers today to observe a Christmas truce to keep "the clash of arms from drowning out the angelic chorus of peace."

The Pontiff called on the belligerents to observe a truce "spontaneously or by mutual accord" in order that "new bloodshed may not disturb or miserably extinguish heavenly joy of that hour."

The appeal was contained in a Motu Proprio, the name given to certain papal rescripts because of the phrase, Motu Proprio—"of His own accord"—used in the document.

AFTERNOON MASSES

The Pope said in part: "It is fair to hope and trust that at least on that Holy Night of that Holy Day all belligerents will declare a truce either spontaneously or by mutual accord so that the clash of arms shall not cover the angelic chorus of peace which is repeated in the sacred temples and so that new fraternal bloodshed shall not disturb or miserably extinguish the heavenly joy of that hour."

The Pontiff's appeal accompanied permission for Christmas Eve masses in the afternoon instead of midnight where wartime blackouts prevail.

In addition, the Pope freed Catholics in war stricken regions from obligations to attend mass on Christmas Day itself.

BRITAIN ONCE REJECTED

Nov. 26 Prime Minister Winston Churchill rejected with a curt "No, sir!" a proposal made in the British Parliament that he seek to arrange a Christmas armistice.

He said any such proposal would be rejected by the government.

Suggestions for Christmas cessation of hostilities have similarly been rejected in the past, but some soldiers in the trenches in the World War dropped their weapons

New Bombsight House to Be Burglar Proof

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 3 (AP)—Uncle Sam has begun construction here of a squat, concrete "burglar-proof" building to store 26 of his newest type bombsights at the new army bomber base going up at Bowman Field airport, about 35 miles from another squat, concrete "lockbox"—his gold vault at Fort Knox.

Nazi Raiders Claim 18 Ships, Including Big Cruiser, Sunk

BERLIN, Dec. 3 (AP)—In two successful submarine assaults on Britain's commerce yesterday, one of them under the shell fire of British warships, 17 merchantmen totaling more than 131,000 tons and a 17,000-ton auxiliary cruiser were sent to the bottom, the high command reported today.

SURVIVORS REACH CANADA—Snatched from a watery grave by a freighter, crew members of the ill-fated British merchantman Trewellard arrive at a port in eastern Canada. Their vessel was being convoyed by the Jervis Bay when a Nazi surface raider attacked them in mid-Atlantic.

With two others, totalling 16,000 tons, added as probably sunk, the communique said:

"Thus, on Dec. 2, submarines alone sank British shipping totalling over 160,000 tons."

At least 15 of the ships, representing 110,000 tons, went down in one swoop, it said, when U-boats slipped past the booming guns of a convoy's strong cruiser and destroyer guard and rammed home their torpedoes before the zig-zag line of freighters scattered.

British official circles declined to comment at present on German claims of heavy new sinkings of British ships in the Atlantic.

CRUISER NOT IDENTIFIED

Although the communique said the sunken auxiliary cruiser, one of the protecting vessels which put up "energetic fire" against the U-boats, was the 17,000-ton converted liner Caledonia, DNB, official German news agency, eliminated that identification.

The agency later asked editors to strike mention of the Caledonia from the communique, substituting merely "an auxiliary cruiser of about 17,000 tons."

On admiralty announcement June 14, confirming Germany's own claim, admitted the former Anchor liner Caledonia, converted for war service and renamed the Scotonia, was sunk by a German submarine the day before with a loss of two officers and four seamen.

The former liner Majestic was rebuilt as a training ship in 1938 at a cost of $3,500,000 and renamed the Caledonia. This may be the "auxiliary cruiser" which the Germans claim to have sunk yesterday.—Editor's Note.

U-BOAT SINKS FIVE

The communique singled out a U-boat commanded by Lieut.-Commander Meyerensen in the convoy raid. It said his submarine "contributed notably to this success" by sinking five ships totalling 41,600 tons.

Distress signals picked up by Mackay Radio over a 20-hour period beginning late Sunday

GREEKS REPORT WIDE GAINS ALL ALONG BATTLEFRONT

ATHENS, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Greek left wing, reported to have smashed past Porto Edda, was said today to be pacing wide new gains all along the battlefield and threatening to engulf the last Italian fighting force in southern Albania.

The high command reported Greek shock troops won new mountain heights north of Premet, in a thrust into central Albania, and north of Pogradetz, in a drive down the road toward Elbasani, but a government spokesman termed the left wing advance the "most important."

There, the spokesman said, "the enemy retreated to the heights around Delvino and has passed, in depth, Santi Quaranta."

That is the port the Italians renamed Porto Edda for Premier Mussolini's daughter.

ROAD UNDER FIRE

The Greeks apparently had not broken Italian resistance in the section immediately around the port, but indicated Fascist troops there might be cut off. The high command declared the road linking the port with Argirocastro, 15 miles northeast, had been placed under Greek fire.

In the central and northern sectors, the high command reported more prisoners had been taken. The greatest number of prisoners reported taken was 5000 yesterday. Their surrender, the Greeks de-

Germans Blast Bristol, Renew London Attacks

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's Luftwaffe hammered furiously at Britain's west coast port of Bristol for six hours last night and then shifted its attention suddenly to London today after passing up the capital entirely from dusk to dawn.

Twice before noon, the Germans struck at London, and one squadron of raiders dodged through a curtain of anti-aircraft fire to shower bombs which demolished a number of dwellings and caused some casualties. A third alarm, followed quickly by the all clear, sounded during the lurch hour.

A fourth alarm came early in the afternoon. At the same time German planes were reported near a west England town.

The day's communique of the air ministry said aircraft of the coastal command attacked shipping off the Norwegian coast last night, dealing a direct hit to one ship and setting fire to the wharves at Jeje island.

Aircraft of the bomber command, the communique said, attacked the submarine base at Lorient. No planes were lost in the operations, the report said.

Bombs also were dropped at scattered points in East Anglia, South Wales, and elsewhere. Damage and casualties in these raids were described officially as slight.

Night raiders also were reported over Liverpool.

WALTHAM HEARS PLAN

The federal food stamp plan will be explained to the Waltham welfare department and some 50 Waltham grocers tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Waltham City Hall. The meeting is a step toward institution of the stamp plan in Waltham.

Londoners Sleep In Own Beds as Air Raids Ease

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Thousands of Londoners have taken advantage of the toned-down air raids of the past month to sleep between sheets instead of packing congested subway shelters.

The home office estimated today the nightly population of the underground stations had fallen off about 40 per cent, from 150,000 a month ago to an average of 90,000.

The strain on the subways has been relieved also by the opening of many basement shelters accommodating about 100,000.

FOR ENGLAND—Aiding the Christmas Ship for England campaign, Mrs. Victor Donald of Brookline packs gloves, socks and scarves at Summer st. headquarters.

WIFE IN DRAMATIC TRIAL COLLAPSES

Accused of tearing another woman's scalp loose, Mrs. Myrtle De Grotte, 36, of Revere st., West End, staged a dramatic scene today in municipal court when she pointed a finger at the accuser and cried:

"That woman stole my husband! That woman broke up my home! She's the cause of my husband not being with me now."

A short time later, after she had talked with a doctor, Mrs. De Grotte became hysterical in a courthouse corridor and crumpled to the floor.

She was taken into the judge's lobby and there her case was continued until Thursday for disposition, she having been found guilty of assault and battery on Miss Eileen Boyd, 23, attractive brunette waitress at the Harvard Gardens, Cafe, Cambridge st., West End.

ARREST IS SURPRISE

All in all, Mrs. De Grotte, a blonde, had a rather difficult day of it in court. In the first place, she hadn't expected to become a defendant, inasmuch as she went to court as a complainant.

This was in a case against her husband, Morris, whom she had charged with failing to obey a court order to pay her $4 a week.

Before she had a chance to appear in that case, Special Officer Dennis G. Mahoney of Joy st. station arrested her on a warrant he obtained yesterday in the assault case.

Mrs. De Grotte was placed in the prisoners' dock, and while there her charge against her husband was dismissed. Then the assault and battery case came before Judge Frank W. Tomasello.

Miss Boyd appeared with her head bandaged and testified Mrs. De Grotte, out of jealousy, had accused her of stealing De Grotte away.

"That is definitely not so," said the waitress firmly.

ILLEGALLY SCALPED HER

She said Mrs. De Grotte went frequently to the cafe and made accusations that Miss Boyd was breaking up her home. So much trouble did the wife make, the witness declared, that on several occasions she had to get a police escort home.

As the cafe was closing Thanksgiving morning, Miss Boyd said, Mrs. De Grotte appeared, leaped upon her, knocked her down, jumped on her and seized her hair with both hands.

The waitress said she shrieked with pain as the other woman tore and tugged at the hair. She declared the efforts of five men, including a wrestler, were needed before the hands could be loosened.

Officer Mahoney testified doctors at City Hospital, where Miss Boyd was treated four days, told him she had literally been scalped—as badly as if her hair had been caught in a machine.

In her own behalf, Mrs. De Grotte testified she was so excited and nervous her clenched hands would not open. When Judge Tomasello found her guilty, she rose, pointed at Miss Boyd and began shouting accusations.

On the judge's order, she was taken upstairs for a mental examination, and was on her way back again, for disposition in the judge's lobby, when she became hysterical.

Girl Elopers Files Intentions

Despite a plea that her mother is seriously ill and needs her, 19-year-old Helen Kimball of Union st., Holliston, filed marriage intentions at Boston City Hall today to wed her childhood sweetheart, Harry Damigella, 29, of Seventh st., South Boston.

At the home of Damigella's parents it was learned that the missing girl, whose mother collapsed on hearing of her intended elopement, was staying with a married sister of the bridegroom-to-be.

Damigella's mother refused to divulge the address of the married sister and said that the couple intended to be married in a church ceremony as soon as the legal limit following filing of intentions expired.

Gandhi Warns Public On Demonstrations

BOMBAY, Dec. 3 (AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi ordered today that members of the All-India Congress should avoid public demonstrations in protests against Indian participation in the war.

Gandhi wired Rajendra Prasad, former president of the congress, that only police should be notified when congress leaders planned to invite arrest. Chakravarti Rajagopalachari of Madras, former congress premier, was jailed for one year today.

Bomb Horrors Told By Yule Ship Donors

By JAMES DOOLING

"In this small parcel goes my whole heart to the people of England . . .

"Having been through the air raids in the last war myself, I know what they are suffering."

LONDON FAMILY CLIMBS FROM BOMB-WRECKED HOME They, and Thousands of Others, Await Yule Ship

This little note was inside a package of soft, newly purchased, woolen mittens, sweaters and stockings received today at downtown headquarters of a A CHRISTMAS SHIP FOR ENGLAND.

The woman who signed it was Mrs. Mary Moon of 41 Porter st., Somerville, and while she told nothing of herself except in those few words, hers is a story worth the telling.

She lived in London during the years of the first World War when civilians first learned the horror of air raiders who dropped their deadly freight without caring whether the target was a military objective or a workman's home.

And yet in all the long years of that war there were only as many total casualties as they have among civilians in one fortnight of the cruel raids by Hitler's aerial armadas in 1940.

CASUALTIES HIGHER

From Jan. 13, 1915, to Oct. 1, 1917, there were 685 civilians war-torn slain by aircraft, yet in a single

Penn. Student Finds Baby in Dormitory

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3 (AP)—A University of Pennsylvania dormitory housing 43 men students appeared destined today for a bit of young feminine influence.

A three-week-old girl was found abandoned in the hallway of the dormitory at 1:40 a. m. Saturday and Mrs. Bessie Bittling, 49-year-old childless housemother, announced today she would file adoption papers.

"I've always wanted a baby," explained Mrs. Bittling. "Besides," she added, "I've got 43 devils here in this dormitory. They're all good boys and students, but they need a girl around."

Frank Norton of Rutavia, N. Y., a senior in the university's Wharton school, found the baby when he returned to the dormitory. He called Mrs. Bittling.

The baby was dressed in an expensively-made pink-knit suit and wrapped in a pink and white blanket.

A note inside the blanket read: "Baby Louise. Please take care of her for me. Don't send her to a home. In due time I will send you money and in time I will come and get her."

Instead of Louise, however, the baby will be named Wanita if Mrs. Bittling is granted her custody.

$700,000,000 FOR ITALY

ROME, Dec. 3 (INS)—A new decree authorizing "extraordinary expenditure" of 14,000,000,000 lira (about $700,000,000) was announced today by the official Gazette.

A RESIDENT of London during the years of the first World War, Mrs. Mary Moon (here) of Somerville, knows truly the hardships the people of England are going through. Enclosed in her package of clothing donated for the Christmas Ship was a note reading: "In this parcel goes my whole heart to the people of England."

MORE FIRMS AID SHIP

Every day more business firms are sending valuable, brand-new clothing and shoes to help fill A CHRISTMAS SHIP FOR ENGLAND and here are a few examples of what is being received:

Fred Monosson, president of the Metropolitan Raincoat Co. of Boston, donated several dozen of men's and children's waterproof coats, fresh from his company's stock.

The Cosmopolitan Manufacturing Co. of Amherst st., Cambridge, sent in several dozen expensive reversible coats, woolen trousers and other new clothing of excellent quality.

A. I. Myers of Boston and the Paramount Clothing Co. of Cambridge were other generous donors who sent in many parcels of new winter garments.

Seventy-four pairs of women's and girls' shoes were given by a group of Lincoln st. firms in Boston.

They are, Brooks Shoe Co., Superior Shoe Co., Benjamin Shir Co.,

Best Shoe Co. and Hirsch & Slater Shoe Co.

A deep bow of gratitude to these companies helping to fill A CHRISTMAS SHIP FOR ENGLAND.

DEVER FIGHT MAY DELAY INAUGURAL

With final recourse to the courts apparently certain as the ever-increasing number of protested ballots soared into the thousands, Atty-Gen. Paul A. Dever's recount fight to cut Gov. Saltonstall's lead in the governorship election began bogging down badly today in the city of Boston.

Architect M'Laughlin Indicted

James E. McLaughlin of Chestnut Hill, nationally-known architect and member of the Boston firm of McLaughlin & Burr, was indicted today by the Middlesex County grand jury on a charge of perjury.

The charge grows out of the grand jury probe of alleged graft in connection with the construction of public buildings in Cambridge during the administration of Mayor John W. Lyons.

Last week Mayor Lyons and Paul Mannor, president of the defunct Canton Mutual Insurance Co., were indicted on charges of conspiring to solicit and accept bribes in connection with the building program. According to the Middlesex district attorney's office, McLaughlin appeared before the grand jury on Oct. 11 and was questioned as to whether he had borrowed a considerable sum of money during the previous two or three months.

McLaughlin is asserted to have denied that he, his firm or anyone else had done so in his behalf, a statement which the grand jury indictment calls false.

The McLaughlin firm were the architects for the new Cambridge Maternity Hospital and the Cambridge incinerator plant.

Dist. Atty. Robert F. Bradford said this afternoon that McLaughlin will be summoned to appear for arraignment in Middlesex Superior Court and that the investigation into Cambridge municipal affairs is continuing.

Lovett May Be Named Virgin Islands Chief
WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Interior Department officials said today they expected Robert M. Lovett, Boston novelist and historian, to become acting governor of the Virgin Islands soon in view of Gov. Lawrence W. Cramer's resignation.

Lovett, 70, became government secretary of the islands in 1939. If Cramer resigns, officials said, Lovett likely will take over his duties until Mr. Roosevelt sends a new governorship nomination to the Senate for confirmation.

Although he picked up 150 votes in five Cambridge wards, Dever saw his original Boston gain of 133 whittled to 38, with 33 of the city's 356 precincts retabulated.

This left Saltonstall still leading by the state by 5714, as compared with his original election count plurality of 9450.

SEE INAUGURAL DELAY

Meantime, veteran political observers predicted the Governor's second term inauguration would be delayed pending superior court and possibly Supreme court appeals by Dever counsel on the issue of protested ballots.

In one Worcester precinct, Dever representatives challenged all 1649 ballots. Also protested by Dever were 7000 Needham ballots and many more thousands in four Cambridge wards. Improper sealing was charged in each of the latter two instances.

First Boston ward completely retabulated was Ward 1, East Boston. Dever picked up 63 votes there, in a total of 22 precincts.

GOVERNOR CUTS GAIN

In the next 11 precincts, however, Saltonstall scored a net gain of 25, cutting the Dever gain to 38.

Dever picked up one lone vote on Precinct 1, Ward 18, Roxbury.

Dever also picked up a net gain of 11 votes today in the towns of Ayer, Franklin, Raynham and Pepperell.

In 33 of 48 Springfield precincts, Dever gained 137, while complete returns from Worcester gave Saltonstall a net increase of 114.

The right of Municipal Chief Justice F. Delano Putnam to officiate in the recount of Boston's 336,000 gubernatorial votes was protested by Asst. Atty-Gen. Arthur V. Sullivan, a Dever supporter, because Putnam was appointed to the bench by Governor Saltonstall, one of the contestants.

Putnam declined Sullivan's suggestion that he disqualify himself, declaring "the point is not well taken."

Hub Doctor Fined $75 In Sanatorium Attack

WESTFIELD, Dec. 3 (AP)—Dr. Maurice J. McElligott, 33, of Boston, former member of the medical staff of the Westfield State Sanatorium, was convicted and fined $75 today on a charge of assault and battery on Dr. Ernest M. Daland of Newton, director of the institution's cancer division.

McElligott appealed and furnished bail of $100. The case grew out of an argument on Oct. 30.

MANUELLA VANDERBILT
Agrees to Separation

A. G. Vanderbilt Admits 'Mutual Separation'

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, 28-year-old president of the Pimlico and Belmont racing associations, said through a spokesman today that he and his wife, the former Manuella Hudson, "have agreed by mutual agreement."

This bare announcement, made for Vanderbilt by David Woods, publicity director for the Belmont and Pimlico tracks, was all that Vanderbilt would say.

He was at the Plaza Hotel, while Mrs. Vanderbilt was registered at the Waldorf. She was not immediately available for comment.

The couple had represented one of the country's leading turf romances. Vanderbilt's wife, a lover of thoroughbreds, is a niece of Charles S. Howard, owner of Seabiscuit. Their courtship began when they met at race meets.

Before their marriage in June, 1938, Vanderbilt, son of the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and Mrs. Margaret Emerson, had been considered one of the nation's most eligible bachelors.

His fortune is estimated by informed persons at between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000.

The Vanderbilts have a small daughter, Wendy.

Their separation follows by a few months the end of the romance of another prominent turf couple—John Hay "Jack" Whitney, gentleman jockey, and the former Mary Elizabeth Altman, who is not only a good judge of thoroughbreds but an expert horsewoman.

Mrs. Whitney, widely known as "Laz," obtained a Nevada divorce.

Shivering Troops Seek Piano to Get Hot

Even if you're still living in tents you can get hot if you have a piano—and 200 troops sent out an appeal for one today from Deer Island.

There they are still under canvas, the headquarters batteries of the 1st and 4th battalions, 241st Coast Artillery, and it's a bit chilly living in tents these nights.

But a good boy pounding the horse teeth can raise considerable heat and a jive or two is very warming to the spirits.

The soldiers guarantee transportation for the piano to Deer Island.

2 Utility Companies, 3 Executives Indicted

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 3 (AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted two utilities companies and three executives on charges of conspiring to make political contributions in violation of the Public Utility Holding Company Act and the conspiracy provisions of the Federal Criminal Code.

The individuals named were Henry L. Hanley, vice-president of the North American Co., huge holding system with which both indicted firms are affiliated, and Aura C. Hall, also a vice-president of the Illinois Iowa Power Co.

City Hospital Heads Defend Miss Busche

Trustees of the Boston City Hospital today, in a statement signed by Carl Dreyfus, president, insisted the appointment of Miss Margaret J. Busche as head nurse was obviously the best selection and recalled that the City Council is prohibited from interference in hospital management.

In his letter, Dreyfus cited a report of the Finance Commission, dated April 6, 1939, defending the conduct of the hospital by the trustees and pointing out that city councilors are prohibited from interfering except on inquiry into appropriations.

The Dreyfus statement was the result of a resolution adopted at yesterday's council meeting demanding removal of Miss Busche as head nurse and asking for an explanation of her appointment over the heads of hospital graduates.

Dreyfus pointed out that Miss Busche had been acting superintendent for four years and that the trustees felt their action in appointing her as head nurse was for the best interests of patients and the hospital.

In the Finance Commission report quoted by Dreyfus it was stated the periodical outbursts of city councilors had failed to harm the medical reputation of the hospital.

But, it was added, every outburst makes it more difficult for appointed executives to carry on their work in orderly comfort.

REST HOME TRIO GO ON TRIAL

William J. Donahoe, 82, a retired city employee, was found lashed to a bed in the Roxbury rest home operated by Kempton and Andrew Hain and the latter's young wife, a doctor testified in superior court today as the trio went on trial, charged with larceny of the old man's life savings.

Dr. John Francis Healy, sent to the home by Thomas and John Donahoe, brothers of the invalid, to examine William, said he found the old man tied in bed, and that he had a cut in his scalp.

Since that time, Dr. Healy testified, Donahoe has been moved to another home and has grown steadily worse, mentally.

The Hain brothers and Marjorie, brunette wife of Andrew, went to trial before Chief Justice John Higgins and a jury on charges of conspiracy to steal and larceny of $1618.

Zero Weather Predicted in Hub Tonight

Tonight is scheduled to be coldest of the season, with zero temperatures in Greater Boston and the mercury down to as low as 15 below zero in northern New England and the Berkshires.

According to a Boston weather bureau warning, frigid air masses have moved down into the Great Lakes region from north polar regions and will spread their chill to New England today and tonight.

Temperatures as low as 26 below zero have attended the cold spell in the Middle West.

Increasing cloudiness and gradually rising temperatures tomorrow offer New England its first relief from the early-winter blitzkrieg.

BLOOD TRIAL OPENS IN R. I. ON WIFE-MURDER CHARGE

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 3—Accused of slaying his 26-year-old wife because of her desire for motherhood, Richard E. Blood, 40, went on trial in Superior Court today after he pleaded innocent to a first degree murder charge. Three married women were questioned as prospective jurors.

Blood, an investigator for the State Department of Labor, reported that he had found the body of his wife, Muriel, in the cement driveway of their Pawtucket home Sept. 5. She died without regaining consciousness.

At first her death was thought to have been accidental, the result of a fall from a window.

Public Safety Commr. Harry Curvin investigated and Blood was arrested while conducting a labor case.

The state charged Blood and his young wife argued over motherhood and that he kicked her and then took her to the driveway.

Blood denied this, stating his wife probably fell out of a window during a dizzy spell. His first wife was divorced.

After hearing Blood plead innocence, Judge Frederick Frost ordered the drawing of a jury—14 members instead of the usual 12 in accordance with the Rhode Island law that requires two "spares."

Spanish Train Wreck Kills 53

ZARAGOZA, Spain, Dec. 3 (AP)—Fifty-three bodies were reported taken today from the wreckage of two express trains that collided at a way station between Madrid and Barcelona and it was feared the toll would mount even higher. The accident occurred during the coldest weather of the season, with the temperature at 14 degrees Fahrenheit. Some victims, weakened with loss of blood, were reported to have perished from the cold.

Kennedy Maps His 1-Man Fight on War

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (INS)—Intimates of Joseph P. Kennedy, retiring ambassador to Great Britain, said today that shortly after Christmas he will launch a "one-man campaign" to educate the American people against this country becoming involved in the European war.

After a rest at Palm Beach, Fla., Kennedy will begin writing magazine articles, making speeches and delivering radio talks, his friends say.

This campaign, his friends asserted, will be in line with his statement in resigning as ambassador that he intends to devote his time to "the greatest cause in the world today, to help the President keep the United States out of war."

Kennedy is represented as feeling that strong efforts are being made to promote a "war spirit" in the United States, and he wants to do all he can to counteract it. Kennedy is represented as thinking that America should give thought to such questions as:

1—What if Great Britain went into a socialist form of government?

2—What if the war ended sooner than is now generally anticipated?

3—How would America's economy be affected if, after the war, governments and not corporations or individuals negotiated all import and export business?

Kennedy is said to feel that Mr. Roosevelt, better than any other man, would be able to handle the situation if America's entire economy was changed by a sooner-than-anticipated ending of the war.

CENSUS GIVES U. S. 131,669,275

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (INS)—The population of the continental United States today was officially announced as 131,669,275 in a report of the census bureau, which revealed a slackening in the increase of city population for the first time in 110 years.

At the same time a new apportionment of the House of Representatives, based upon population shifts in the last decade, was announced. Ten states, including Massachusetts, lost members of the House while eight gain seats on the basis of the census.

The population figure, which was fixed as of April 1 by the census bureau, shows a gain of 7.2 per cent since 1930 when the population was 122,775,046.

"Although the westward movement has continued and is reflected in an increased proportion of the population in the Pacific coast and mountain states, the trend long established in the United States of migration from rural to urban areas has been slackened," Director of the Census William L. Austin said.

The figures show: The Pacific coast made the greatest population gain—18.6 per cent. The South Atlantic section was second with 12.9 per cent gain.

The lowest gain was the West North Central—the drouth area—with an increase of 1.7 per cent and the next lowest was New England with 3.3 per cent.

States losing population were Vermont, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma.

The District of Columbia made the greatest population gain, 38.2 per cent, while Florida was second with 29.2 per cent.

States gaining members of the House are: Arizona, Florida, Michigan, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oregon and Tennessee, one each, and California, three.

States losing one each are Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania.

Members of Congress from states losing members are expected to urge an increase in the membership of the House so as to allow increases in states gaining in population and avoid taking seats from other states.

Official population figures for

New England states are:		Increase

SMITH BROS. COUGH DROPS

TRADE MARK

CONTAIN VITAMIN A (CAROTENE)

Some folks still can't believe their eyes

GOING over Buick dealers' reports on our 1941 models, we find an unusual thing happening.

Time and again cars come in for the usual inspections with an extra note of instructions—"Please check the gas gauge needle."

Even after hundreds of miles, people mistrust their eyes when they see its snail-like pace from the Full mark toward Empty—they don't see how it's possible for a car as big as Buick to go so far on so little.

But it does—and for good reasons.

The whole FIREBALL engine was designed and built to get the most good out of modern gasolines.

And the simple secret of Compound Carburetion is that it keeps your engine running on its most frugal diet for all normal driving—and provides full feed only when you need, want and call for the lift of extra wallop.

Meantime even the gears are helping save money—for the regular high gear in a Buick gives you the economy of the so-called "gas-saving" top speeds you hear about.

The big thing is, of course, that this is no small car that's setting these economy figures. There are all the room, size, impressiveness, comfort and downright thrilling performance you expect from a Buick.

So it isn't because the needle's out of kilter that it goes down so slowly. It's simply because it's in a FIREBALL Buick.

DIANA BARRYMORE

John's Diana Thrills N. Y. in Dickens Play

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—An important event, both in theatrical and literary circles, stirred Broadway today with a new Barrymore making her New York debut in a play based upon a group of recently-discovered letters which brought out many heretofore-unknown secrets about the private life of Charles Dickens.

The young Barrymore is Diana, lovely daughter of John Barrymore and Postess Michael Strange. She is a pretty ingenue who has the voice and grace that is expected of any member of such a royal family of the stage.

And it is in an appropriately romantic role in which she makes her debut, as the glamorous actress, Caroline Bronson, who almost gives Dickens the perfect love of his life.

It is around that romance, along with several other amours not so ethereal, that H. H. and Marguerite Harper have written this authoritative play, "Roma-tic Mr. Dickens."

U. S. Court O. K. For 5 Women

Five women were among 82 Massachusetts attorneys admitted today to practice in United States District Court here.

The five included Anna M. B. Flynn of Fall River, Fannie C. Mulligan of Attleboro, Barbara Frances Williams of Back Bay, and Anna E. Haddon and Mary A. Kerwin, both of Boston.

The newly-admitted attorneys were sworn in by Clerk James Alton before a full bench of the court including Judges Francis J. W. Ford, George C. Sweeney, Fasha H. Brewster and Hugh D. McEllan.

The December session of the court was formally opened with a new federal grand jury.

Sculptor Dallin's Grandchild Injured

Jean Dallin, 18, granddaughter of the famed sculptor, Cyrus E. Dallin, received cuts and bruises about the body today when she was struck by car driven by a fellow student in Gray st., Arlington, as both were on their way to Arlington High School.

Donald E. Smith, of Park ave., Arlington Heights, driver of the car, reported to police that he had taken the girl to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin B. Dallin, in Oakland ave., Arlington Heights, where she was attended by the family doctor.

10 TEACHER IN PROBE EXPELLED BY REDS

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—A Brooklyn college teacher testified today before a joint legislative committee investigating subversive activities in the city schools that when he attempted to resign from the Communist party he "found out one cannot resign—one can only be expelled."

Dr. Bernard D. N. Grebanier, assistant professor of English, also testified that it had cost him approximately $500 a year to belong to the Communist party.

Not all of this went for dues, he said, explaining that while the amount of dues was regulated "according to one's income," other contributions were required for funds for Communist work in other countries and for the "Daily Worker" assessments for party conventions and contributions to "the Red Front Fund."

"I never knew exactly what that front was," Grebanier said.

8 INSTRUCTORS NAMED

He added that members of the Communist unit at Brooklyn College—yesterday he named eight other instructors who he said were members—published "The Brooklyn College Staff" from May, 1935, "through 1939."

Three professors were contributors to this publication, without credit of authorship, Grebanier testified. Members of the faculty received the publication through the mail, Grebanier said, while Young Communist League members distributed it to students.

Grebanier said he attempted to resign from the unit the latter part of 1938—earlier he said he had joined in 1935—but after some discussion the resignation was "torn up."

He said he joined the organization because he thought it to be "against Fascism and in support of democracy," but "once I got in I found it much different."

EXPELLED FROM PARTY

He continued that in the spring of 1939 "it became a matter of personal integrity" and he again attempted to resign. In August, he explained, he received a letter from the unit informing him he had been "expelled in June" and describing him as a "Trotskyite and an enemy of the working people."

PROF. B. D. N. GREBANIER

Closing his testimony, Grebanier said his testimony "might give a false impression of the situation at Brooklyn College today."

"I believe the Communist influence is now at the vanishing point," he said. "The Young Communist League has lost much influence among the students. What influence it has, has been reduced to members of the organization. I believe the same thing is true for the faculty."

He added that the cessation of the unit publications "shows the waning of Communist influence in Brooklyn College."

In naming other alleged party members yesterday, he charged they had few native members under various aliases for five years.

Goodwin Flays Insurance Levy

Hitting at fake auto accident claims and "chiseling lawyers," Motor Vehicle Registrar Frank A. Goodwin said today it would be an "outrage" to assess 50,000 policyholders for the liabilities of the defunct Broad Street Mutual and Canton Mutual Insurance companies.

The registrar was answering yesterday's action by State Insurance Commissioner Charles F. J. Harrington in recommending legislation empowering Goodwin to suspend licenses and registrations of policyholders who failed to pay such mutual company liabilities.

"While it is true," said Goodwin, "a great many injured persons will not be able to collect if this money is not taken away from the policy holders, it is safe to say 75 per cent of the claims are fakes and most of the money would go to chiseling lawyers."

UNDERPASS STUDIED

Mayor Tobin today studied the possibility of a vehicular underpass to relieve congestion on Commonwealth ave. at Cottage Farm bridge after such a proposal had been advanced in the City Council by Councilors Maurice H. Sullivan of Brighton and Michael J. Ward of Allston.

Girl Plus Cops, Cats Equal This:

A telephone call from a frantic girl clerk in a Beacon st., Brooklyn, confectionery shop sent three auto loads of heavily armed police to protect her from "burglars on the roof."

But after the shop had been surrounded and Patrolman John Walsh and Joseph Higgins had climbed valiantly to the roof, guns in hand, the "burglars" turned out to be a pair of stray tomcats playing hide and seek.

'Hub School Pool Funds to Be Sought

A move to obtain Federal funds to build swimming pools in each of the Boston high schools was under way today following passage by the City Council of an order introduced by Councilor Perlie Hyar Chase of the Back Bay. Chase expressed the opinion that the swimming pools could be obtained by the school committee in the form of WPA projects.

Gillette Raps Election Cost

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Chairman Gillette (D.) of Iowa, of the Senate campaign expenditures committee thinks that the American people's bill for the 1940 presidential election probably was at least $20,000,000 more than it should have been.

"While the statement is purely a guess," he said last night, "I think I am speaking conservatively when I say that the recent presidential election cost the American people over 20 millions of dollars over and above the routine costs of election boards, ballots and similar expenses."

The Hatch Act imposed a $3,000,000 limit on the amount a "political committee" may spend in one calendar year.—Editor's note.

Federal court officials today began selecting the 23 members of a special grand jury which will investigate campaign expenditures by national political parties.

ROOSEVELT Greeks in New Gains All Along Battle Front STILL MUM

MIAMI, B. Dec. 3 (INS)—President Roosevelt arrived at this famed winterport this afternoon and went to the side of the U. S. S. Tuscon, still refusing to reveal when he intends to cruise and what intends to inspect in the way of old Indies defenses during the next two weeks.

The hesitancy could get from him a rather sardonic suggestion was headed for the Christmas lads to buy Christmas cards, and hence to the Easter Islands to beaster eggs.

Asked when he intended to inspect any of the bases newly acquired from Great Britain to strengthen Panama Canal defenses, the president said he didn't have the faint idea.

Then he hinted to the extent of admitting to obviously he had a general idea here he was going but added he did not intend to tell the press.

clared, broke Italian morale and resistance in the center of the fighting front.

"Near Premet," the high command said, "our sections occupied new positions. . . On the Ostrovia mountains, successful attacks by our troops dispersed enemy sections."

GREEKS TAKE OVER SUMMIT
A spokesman added that "in the River Asoa region (of the central section) our troops are fighting with the same courage as that which enabled them to capture Pogradetz and have captured a summit on Politian mountain."

Dispatches from the Yugoslav frontier near the lake indicated two Greek columns are driving toward Elbasan, 45 miles by road from Pogradetz, along the Skumbi and Devol river valleys. These reports said the Greeks had reached the upper Skumbi valley, which twists northwest from Pogradetz to Elbasan, and were moving north toward Elbasan along the Devol valley northwest of Moshopolis.—Editor's note.

Italy's Dodecanese Islands Blockaded

SUDA BAY, Island of Crete, Dec. 3 (AP)—Great Britain and Greece are blocking a powerful base out of the island in the eastern Mediterranean, and the British report it already is blockading effectively Italy's fortified Dodecanese islands.

Almost all Crete teams with British and Greek soldiers. Heavy anti-aircraft guns guard the island, one of the biggest and deepest in this Mediterranean region.

While transports bring in fresh troops and supplies, some of the British warships stand by in the bay, ready to meet any Italian sea or air attack.

British warships alongside the island, are throwing up new fortifications.

The British say their men and material are making Crete one of the strongest links in Britain's southern defense line to the Dodecanese islands. Not one Italian ship, they say, has passed through Suda bay to the Dodecanese since the British base was established here.

But Suda Bay's land, sea and air forces are a secret but it is said they are more than sufficient to cope with any Italian attempt.

While the British fleet roves the Mediterranean and Ionian seas trying to block Italy's first aim—destruction of Italy's squadrons—it is said to be constantly pushing forward its second— isolation of the Dodecanese.

Besides dwindling Fascist oil supplies, British say, a food shortage is developing.

Britain's naval commanders say their ships have slowed down, if not altogether stopped, Italian attempts to provision and reinforce Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's long-threatened offensive into Egypt.

Many Ships Sunk By Raiders

night had indicated a number of vessels were attacked by submarines about 500 miles west of Ireland. Among them were the 5497-ton Lady Clancy and her sister ship, the Goodleigh, a ship which gave away the call letters "GKIF," the 4360-ton British vessel W. Hendrick, the 12,247-ton tanker Victor Rose and the 4938-ton freighter, Loch Ranza. Two ships reported they were bombed by planes, the 376-ton British trawler Kilgerran Castle and the Yugoslav freighter Cetvrlj, 1937 tons.—Editor's Note.

A Nazi plane on reconnaissance, the only daylight air activity yesterday, added to this toll by sinking another cargo ship southwest of Ireland, the communique declared.

Brazil and Britain Tangle in Ship Halting

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Dec. 3 (INS)—A diplomatic tangle between Brazil and Great Britain appeared likely today as a result of claims that a British naval cruiser halted the 4978-ton Brazilian steamer Itape, 18 miles off Santhome Cap, seizing 22 German passengers as prisoners of war.

It was reported the captain of the Itape protested against the British action on grounds that his ship was within the territorial limits stipulated by the Havana convention when the British vessel halted the Itape.

The commander of the cruiser, it was reported, rejected the protest, stating he recognized only the peace-time three-mile territorial zone.

BRITISH WARNED OF FOOD CUT

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Lord Woolton, food minister, warned Britons that more shipping would be diverted from food importation to military purposes, but announced today a Christmas "gift" of increased sugar and tea rations for the week of Dec. 16.

He said the nation had undertaken the offensive to settle "old scores" with Italy which would "mean a drain of the country's shipping facilities."

Except for a limited quantity of oranges, the food ministry said, no more cargoes of fresh or tinned fruit will be brought to Britain for the time being except loadings already arranged.

The Christmas ration of sugar will be increased from eight to 12 ounces and of tea from two to four ounces.

"We have to carry our forces overseas—and overseas is the proper place for Britain to be at war," Woolton said yesterday in a speech at Manchester.

"As we are going to lose a part of our food ships to take part in this offensive, I cannot afford to bring you any longer those things which are not essential for prosecution of the war."

One of the matters: "We have a standard of life that the rest of Europe has envied, but now we are going into the offensive."

Savant Eyewitness Tells Graphic Story Of Bristol Bombing

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP)—How an ancient part of Bristol, western English port which was bombed heavily again last night, was turned into a "ruin" and many of the city's university buildings were swept by fire in a recent German raid was told today in a letter received here.

It was written by Dr. J. S. Spink, a London University lecturer who moved to Bristol early in the war with other teachers and students. Dr. Spink is a member of the university and raid precautions guard and an observer in the squad which watched from the Bristol University tower, commanding a good view of the city.

Spink said he was working in his room when an alert sounded shortly after 6 p. m. on the night of the raid, so he "went up to see" here's the story in his own words:

"Two or three big flames floated down, lighting up the whole town. Fires were burning. Suddenly another (a church) started in the center of the city.

HUNDREDS OF BOMBS

"The old town of Bristol is very compact, with narrow, 15th century streets. Suddenly, all along the hills on the south side of the town, hundreds of little points of light appeared—incendiaries.

"Then, right across the center of Bristol, in a strip about a quarter of a mile wide, lots of lights appeared—hundreds of incendiaries bursting into flame on the roofs of houses. I must admit the spectacle was grandiose.

"Then suddenly they began to fall on us, scores of them whistling down around the tower. Many fell on the buildings, and we rushed downstairs to a flat part of the roof and put out two or three.

"We then returned to the tower and watched another dozen or so fires start in shops and buildings around the base of the tower.

"We thought our own building was safe. But a phone bell rang, and a guard in the science block said they had two or three fires. We rushed down from the tower to help them. As we reached one of the doors a bomb came hissing down. We dodged back in and fell flat.

"A bomb fell just outside. We went out to put out an incendiary on a low roof. Then back to the top of the tower.

"The science block rang again and asked us to phone for help—their phone was no good. Outside, fires were raging everywhere. I went to the second floor and phoned the fire brigade.

"On my return I met a colleague, who said he thought the Great Hall was on fire. The roof of the Great Hall was of heavy oak timber . . . The roof was ablaze.

"Then the rush started. There were hoses to pull up and down stairs and get working. I turned a hose on the floor of the hall and played it on the roof until smoke laid me out.

"We kept going and had five hoses at work fairly soon, but the flames spread along the timbers. Burning boards began to fall.

"I was wet to the skin and my suit was ruined, but we didn't care about anything but that . . . fire.

FIVE TIME BOMB

"King's College (London) had two books in that hall and the king's offices under it.

"We carried on until the police cleared us out because of a time bomb. Four bombs had fallen at the base of the building, but none on it.

"Outside, scores of fires were raging. The anatomy block and geography department were done for. The art gallery and museum next door both were obliterated. The whole street was leveled to the ground.

"It was not till the next day that I saw what happened to the shopping and commercial center of Bristol. It is quite true that nearly all damage was done to shops, houses, offices, theaters and cinemas rather than to docks and railways.

"But 15th century Bristol is a ruin.

"Why do churches get hit so frequently?

"The next day there was no water and in some parts no light. Some of the streets no longer existed. Lines of 30 to 40 houses were just rubble.

STILL CARRYING ON

"The vice-chancellor of Bristol and our principal decided to shut down the faculty of arts till next term. The rest are carrying on.

"Bristol really was a stricken town. Luckily, between the second and third belts of incendiaries a wide hand was spared from which essential services could be carried on . . .

"Another raid on the same scale the following night might have been a finishing blow, but I suppose the Germans thought they would get better results per ton of bombs if they attacked another town.

"The casualty list was short. I saw it, by light of torch. I would say there certainly were not 50 killed. Luckily, it was Sunday night, and people all were in the suburbs."

Nurses Save 80 Children As Bristol Is Pounded

BRISTOL, England, Dec. 3 (AP)—The city was hit by one of the heaviest German bombing raids in its history last night.

It was the first time the city had been hit by so many bombs in one night. The city was hit by 100 bombs, and 80 children were saved by nurses.

Nurses saved 80 children of a hospital in Bristol last night. The hospital was hit by 10 bombs, and 80 children were saved by nurses.

"When the first bombs whistled down, the staff of 20 nurses on duty carried the children—four or five to a cot—to a lower corridor," said Nurse Mary Dingle.

"Then there was a deafening crash as a bomb—it must have been a very heavy one—fell through the roof of the operating room. At once we picked up as many children as we could and ran with them to the other hospital. Then we returned and got the others.

"The kiddies were wonderful! They were quite cheerful and sat at the foot of 4 or 5 kangas as we hurried him along."

An air-raid warden, a taxi driver and another civilian ran through the falling bombs and saved a church by putting out fire bombs with hand pumps.

Christmas Truce Urged by Pope Pius

on Christmas and actually fraternized.

The greatest effort of Pope Benedict XV to end the World War failed in December, 1916, when both sides rejected each other's armistice suggestions.

An attempt for a Christmas exchange of hostages in 1936 in the Spanish civil war failed, and both fronts were lively. Last year Helsinki was bombed on Christmas by the Russians.

Text of Pope Pius'

Appeal for Yule Truce

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 3 (AP)—Following is an unofficial translation of the Latin text of Pope Pius' appeal for a Christmas truce.

Since the present war is bringing ruin and carnage not only to combatant armies but sometimes even to peaceable citizens, we, inspired by the paternal affection which we cherish toward peoples, are overlooking nothing that can bring at least spiritual comfort to those who are bearing sorrows and distress of all kinds because of war.

With the approach meanwhile of the solemnities of Christmas eve, we are preoccupied with the thought that, in many places, those sacred rites cannot be carried out without difficulty and danger which are customarily celebrated at midnight Christmas eve with such gentle emotion of Christian sentiment. It has been established by law in not a few nations, in fact, that for fear of reciprocal night air raids lights must be put out or concealed in order that towns and villages will no longer be exposed to such attacks.

TRUCE IN BLOODSHED

It is fair to hope and trust that at least one that holy night and on that holy day all belligerents will declare a truce, either spontaneously or by mutual accord, so that the clash of arms shall not cover the angelic chorus of peace which is repeated in the sacred temples and so that new fraternal bloodshed shall not disturb or mutually extinguish the heavenly joy of that hour.

In any event, however moved by a desire that, as we said above, the faithful shall not lack heavenly blessings and comforts, after major deliberation, by virtue of our apostolic authority, we decree and establish by "Motu Proprio" as follows:

With the present very sad circumstances continuing, in those regions in which blackout laws are in force, it is permissible for individual civilians to concede that in particular, metropolitan, cathedral, collegiate and parochial mass, which usually is celebrated at Christmas midnight, be celebrated instead the evening of Christmas eve in such a way, however, that between the end of the sacred rite and the moment in which the above mentioned laws are enforced there remain some intervals of time.

Ordinaries may also concede the above provision to other churches and public oratories—not, however, to semi-public and private oratories—provided they enjoy by custom of centuries

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be a-tingling you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisons waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisons waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nothing backache, rheumatism, pain, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or nearly 100 urines with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used so successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisons waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

since time immemorial or by apostolic indulgence the privilege of having the eucharistic service celebrated on the night of Christmas Eve.

Before the above-mentioned conventual mass is celebrated in the evening, masses may be recited in chorus beginning, if necessary, at noon.

Priests who make use of this concession can celebrate only two masses the following day, observing a natural fast from midnight.

PRIESTS' FAST PERIOD

Priests who make use of this must abstain from taking any food or drink whatsoever for four hours before beginning the celebrations of the holy mass of Christmas eve.

Those who piously take part in the Eucharistic sacrifice the evening of Christmas eve will fulfill the Holy Day rule for the following day.

Finally, all faithful who take part in the Eucharistic sacrifice the evening of Christmas eve may, even if they took Communion in the morning, approach the Holy Table provided they are confessed, well disposed and have fasted for four hours. They may not however approach the Divine Table the following day.

We will ordain everything established in this Motu Proprio shall have force and effect, anything to the contrary notwithstanding.

Britain May Answer

Appeal by Pope

LONDON, Dec. 3 (INS)—Great Britain may issue an official statement in answer to the Christmas truce appeal of Pope Pius, it was learned today, but for the present well-informed circles see no possibility of its acceptance.

Authoritative quarters referred questions to a statement by Prime Minister Winston Churchill in the House of Commons on Nov. 26, when he categorically rejected a similar proposal by a Laborite M. P.

This statement, it was said, obviously represented the full weight of cabinet opinion.

"His answer," one spokesman said, "would not have been different even if Hitler, Mussolini and everyone else concerned joined themselves in the plea."

Nazis Hint Agreement

On Christmas Truce

BERLIN, Dec. 3 (AP)—Pope Pius' expression of hope for a Christmas truce was received by authorized German quarters today with the comment that it had been the practice of the German fighting forces to disturb the quiet of the Holy Day.

They said, however, the German attitude toward the forthcoming Christmas would be determined by that of the other side, implying that the Germans were willing to have an undisturbed day if the English were willing to stay at home but were also willing to fight if their opponents did.

"Nothing definite can be said about Christmas action," a spokesman explained. "If we said we were not going to do anything, it might be interpreted as a challenge to the enemy to start something."

Dear Mr. Hoffmeyer:

In anticipation of early Christmas buying, we began our Christmas advertising campaign last fall and ran three ads a week in your newspapers with favorable results. However, our ad of November 15th bears particular comment.

It was small ad, measuring only 110 lines on two columns but was directly responsible for the sale of 720 pieces of the advertised merchandise on Friday and Saturday. This only brings out our confidence in the pulling power of your newspapers.

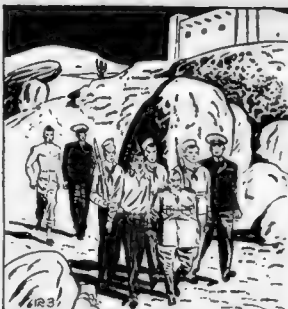

It is only natural, therefore, that we increase our advertising schedule for the month of December.

NEW BASES WILL COST MILLIONS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (INS)—The United States may be required to pay a "substantial sum," possibly $25,000,000 or more, to lease the eight naval bases on British territories in the Western Hemisphere, authoritative sources revealed today.

Rights to construct naval and air bases on the British possessions were obtained by trading 50 destroyers to the English Navy last September.

Although the Navy Department refused to discuss financial details of the negotiations now in progress relative to operation of the eight bases, it is disclosed that the United States may be required to pay annual taxes, as well as large sums for land condemned by the territorial governments.

Sites already have been selected by the Navy at Newfoundland, Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica, St. Lucia, Antigua, and British Guiana. Negotiations for a site in Trinidad are still in progress, despite a statement by Secretary of the Navy Knox that selection of the area desired by the United States only required approval of the British Government.

Unofficial reports reaching Washington last week said that Trinidad authorities at first offered the Navy a tract of marshland which would have required extensive dredging and filling before it would have been serviceable.

Under the terms of the destroyer-naval base exchange, the United States will obtain 99-year leases on the British territory taken over for bases. These facilities are to be "free from all rent and charges other than such compensation to be mutually agreed on to be paid by the United States in order to compensate the owners of private property for loss or damage arising out of the establishment of the bases and facilities in question."

President Roosevelt last week allocated $30,000,000 from emergency funds for construction of the eight bases.

A Real Hair Dye That Costs Less

If you want a real professional-looking job of coloring your gray hair, at a fraction of the usual cost, just try the Barbo recipe given below. You can't go wrong if you follow the easy directions. It's just about as simple as making up your face. Here is the recipe used by thousands.

Get from your drugist one ounce hy run; one-fourth ounce glycerine; one box Barbo Compound. Mix in half pint of water, or your drugist will mix for you at small cost. Simply comb into the hair several times a week. A rich, natural-looking color is imparted to gray, streaked hair. This color is easily maintained, will not wash out; rubs off; or affect permanents. Does not stain the scalp; is not sticky or greasy and leaves the hair soft and glossy. Try the money-saving Barbo recipe today and see how many years younger you will look.

60 British Ships to Be Built in U.S.

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Shipping Minister Ronald H. Cross informed the House of Commons today Britain had placed orders for construction of 60 cargo vessels in the United States and in addition would continue to purchase serviceable American ships.

Cross assured the House "everything possible is being done to get ships with the greatest facility" to meet the menace of Axis raids on shipping—Britain's "most urgent problem at the moment."

Deputy Leader Clement Attlee, answering a question, said he was not aware of any proposal for either definite or irrevocable union with the United States and that "if such plans should approach the fringe of practical policy it could only be after prolonged discussion by the legislative bodies on both sides of the Atlantic."

His reply was to Laborite Richard Stokes, who asked assurances that "no further naval or military bases would be let to the U. S. A. . . or union be entered into or irrevocably committed . . . without the government first giving opportunity to the House for full discussion."

Home Secretary Herbert Morrison announced that emigration to America of selected internees would be facilitated and said Alexander Patterson had gone to Canada to bring "other" internees for the pioneers, British salvage and wreckage squads.

David Gresham, parliamentary secretary for mines, said hundreds of thousands of tons of coal were on railroad sidings and about 3000 carloads originally intended for export were standing at South Wales docks, although arrangements had been completed for disposal of more than 2000 carloads.

GOVERNMENT TO BUILD 1000 FORE RIVER HOMES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The defense commission made public today details of its recommendations for housing construction in 11 localities, for which plans were announced last week.

The report included summaries of defense housing needs in each of the cities. Among them were:

BOSTON (including QUINCY and CHELSEA)—Construction of 1000 units for civilian workers at the Fore River shipbuilding plant to be built by the Federal Housing Administration, completed by next April 1, estimated $2.1 to $3.1. Also construction of 50 units, in addition to 50 for which allocations already have been made, to the Navy, for families of enlisted men at Quincy (Squantum naval reserve aviation base), to be ready April 1.

The commission recommended also that private enterprise provide 1000 additional units in Boston for "probable permanent employees" of the shipbuilding company, rentals, $20 to $15 a month, and noted that the Navy already had received an allocation for 20 units for enlisted men's families at the naval hospital, Chelsea.

DEFENSE SPENDING DOUBLES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The treasury disclosed today that defense expenditures have more than doubled in the first five months of the fiscal year which began July 1.

November in this experience of the war and Navy Department reported $965,247,875. This compares with the steady step up in defense spending since July 1, the totals for the previous five months—July, $177,301,851; August, $194,241,126; September, $214,182,482; October, $254,182,482; and November, $254,182,482.

In the five months total, defense spending was only $123,994,317, which was far behind the $1,500,000,000 rate budgeted for this fiscal year.

According to the treasury, the total for the first five months of the fiscal year was $1,500,000,000, which was far behind the $1,500,000,000 rate budgeted for this fiscal year.

CHARITY is universal in its appeal.

When we are asked to protect defenseless women, to bring comfort to the aged and infirm or to save little children's lives, all our differences, distinctions and discriminations pale into insignificance.

We are no longer Democrats or Republicans.

We are no longer New Englanders, Southerners or Westerners.

We are no longer rich, poor or well-to-do.

For once we stand together as children of God, willing and eager to aid to the best of our ability His other children elsewhere.

That is why the plea to fill the holds of the Christmas Ship for England to overflowing finds a ready and enthusiastic response in every heart and home.

Pledging the co-operation of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Sunday in a special radio broadcast, Lieutenant Governor Horace T. Cahill echoed the thoughts and wishes of millions when he said:

"On the question of giving through the British Christmas Ship, clothing and footwear to help the women and children through the rigors of winter there can be no dispute.

"This is not a question of political belief, nor of neutrality, nor of expediency.

"It is one of SIMPLE HUMAN CHARITY that the requirements of morality demand should be extended from the fortunate to the unfortunate . . .

"I know that the people of Massachusetts, always kindly and understanding, are going to make Christmas happier for those in England who without our help might have a cheerless time."

In this spirit much has been done, and the approaching months will be less harsh for thousands in Britain's bomb-devastated areas as a result.

But much—VERY MUCH—remains to be done.

We therefore appeal to you to contribute a warm garment, a suit, dress or overcoat, for the Christmas ship TODAY.

Your little act of kindness may be the means of saving the life of a homeless mother or orphaned child whose prayers of gratitude will bless you as long as you live.

RECENTLY WED MEN are proving a puzzling problem for local Conscription boards, according to press reports.

In Lawrence, one youth has been required to produce a dated receipt for an engagement ring as evidence that he did not marry to circumvent the draft law.

Elsewhere the situation is equally baffling and embarrassing. This is both regrettable and unnecessary.

No less an authority than the official draft instruction book reminds selective service boards that the United States is still a nation at peace and implores them to use common sense and to be humane.

There are many reasons for this good advice.

Compulsory military service is going to continue for five years unless Congress repeals or revises the statute which authorizes it.

In that time thousands of young men will marry, establish homes and become the fathers of children.

They would certainly do these desirable things if there were no draft law.

They ought not be condemned to five years of bachelorhood merely because the possibility of their being conscripted for military training exists.

Which is precisely what those who regard newly married men as draft dodgers are suggesting.

It is important that we have an efficient army for defense.

But it is also important that we have fathers, mothers and children.

A MAJOR QUESTION of the day for all Americans is: How much longer shall we permit the teaching, overtly or covertly, of anti-democratic doctrines in our State-supported and tax-supported educational institutions?

That such teaching is rampant under the mask of "academic freedom" is only too evident to those who have examined some of the text-books used in our schools and colleges, who are familiar with radical teachers' organizations, and who have read some of the doctrines of so-called "liberal" educators.

Dr. A. G. Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan, is certainly in a position to speak authoritatively on this matter.

In an address the other day before the National Association of State Universities' Convention, he said:

"Freedom of independent thinking, expression and assembly in our schools is NOT license for students and faculty to work against the very form of government which allows such rights to exist.

"ANY FACULTY MEMBER who cannot conscientiously subscribe to such a policy SHOULD RECOGNIZE HIS UNFITNESS AS A TEACHER, and SHOULD SEEK SOME OTHER MEANS OF LIVELIHOOD."

Nothing but the AMERICAN WAY should be taught in our State-supported institutions.

On The Side

FEMININE writers never tire discussing the perennial question: "Should a married woman have men friends?" That is, should a wife go places with a man other than her husband? This query was a favorite with female readers when "Godey's Ladies' Book" was young. Nowadays the ancient inquiry is usually given a streamlined title such as: "Should one have cocktails with an old flame?" The continued interest in this matter on the part of wives leads to a belief there is a wish-is-father-to-the-thought angle to it. How about you, lady? Would you like to have cocktails or an ice cream soda with an old flame? And you, sir, would you object to the little lady stepping out with a former sweetheart?

ANN SHERIDAN may be classed as the "Oomph Girl," but listen to what the noted photographer George Hurrell says of Marlene Dietrich: "Marlene possesses magnetic mysterious beauty and personifies the elemental and eternal woman." Why don't they cast Marlene to play "The Woman Who Did Not Care" in a screen version of "A Fool There Was"? . . . Frank Munsey once said: "Work had nothing to do with my making forty million dollars. It was 99 per cent luck, one per cent work. Lots of others who worked much harder than I have are long since cutting up paper dolls in the poorhouse." . . . There is much talk of the strain on the health it is to be President of the United States. Statistics show Presidents of the United States

Walter Muller of Hollywood, Cal., wires his outfit washed 11,247 cars last month. Walter claims this is the United States record for one service station. This is just propaganda, gentlemen. If women are so smart, how is it so many widows have their money taken from them in financial deals by male slickers?

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

ABILENE, TEXAS, Monday— The first part of our flight yesterday from Washington to Abilene was over the clouds and it seemed as though we might run into bad weather and snow. A little rain fell before we landed in Nashville, Tenn., and we did not land at all in Knoxville.

I am always sorry for the passengers whose stops are left out, because it must be disconcerting to figure how to return to the place you expected to be in much earlier in the day.

Once out of Nashville, the sky cleared gradually until we could feel that we were approaching the South. By the time we reached Abilene, it was no longer cold.

We made up the time we lost earlier in the day through a delay in leaving Washington because of strong head winds, so that we reached the hotel in Abilene before 7 p. m. The first and only request was that I see the press. This did not take up much time, however, and we were soon able to have dinner and retire early.

I FOUND myself really sleepy. Even though I was deeply interested in a book which I had been reading on and off all day, I had to turn out my light somewhere around ten-thirty. After all, I reflected, it is 11:30 by Washington time and I have been up since before 7 this morning.

I finished the book early today. It is Harold J. Laski's "Where Do We Go From Here?" Anyone reading it will recognize that it is easier for an Englishman to write it because it is more important for an Englishman to have the answer immediately.

When you fight for existence you must consider everything which will give strength and unity to those who make the fight. Having conceded that, however, I still think it is an important book for us in America to read.

The complexities of modern civilization make it no longer possible to simplify our beliefs and actions as we could in our revolutionary days. Much that was never dreamed of then now faces us at home and abroad.

It is easy to say that the fundamentals remain the same. They do, but the answers are vastly different. We know that the questions presented in this book have to be met by us as well as by all the other democracies in the world, and yet we run away even from the discussions of the problems involved.

MY DAY

There is one quotation from a page toward the end of the book which I should like all our people to remember: "Fear is the child of privilege; it is endemic in every society where men possess its benefits by the prescription of ancient evil instead of justice of an equal interest. To abolish fear, therefore, we need to abolish privilege. We can do it by the voluntary perception of its dangers, or we can do it by the compulsion of violence."

CUSHMAN CLUB LECTURE TODAY

Mrs. Wallace I. Pierce, Mrs. Ray W. Spencer, Mrs. Gadden Porter, Mrs. Raymond T. Stuart and Mrs. Thomas Murray are among the most recent subscribers to the Charlotte Cushman Club Tuesday morning lectures on the theater.

This morning Miss Minnie Dupree, who ranks among the Who's Who of theatrical and radio circles, was the speaker.

Historian Club Speaker

December will find many celebrities visiting Boston and not the least of them is Dr. Raoul Auerheimer, distinguished Viennese scholar and historian, who will speak at the dinner at the Women's City Club tomorrow evening.

The subject Dr. Auerheimer has chosen for his after dinner speech is "Hitler and Napoleon." He was a playwright of prominence in "the Germany that was" and has made a special study of Napoleon.

His dinner companions at the head table will include Mrs. Aliver Andrews, Mrs. Alexander Steiner, Mr. and Mrs. Stanwood Garfield, Mr. and Mrs. Chester M. Grover, Mr. and Mrs. LaRue Brown and Mrs. William Stanley Parker.

Books and Shakespeare hold a prominent place in the other pre-Christmas activities at the club this week. Mrs. Guy W. Currier gave a Shakespearean reading this morning and tomorrow morning a Christmas book sale will be held in the lounge.

Christmas Cheer

Plan Floating Hospital Fete

Mrs. Carl J. Gilbert, of Needham, presided at the December meeting of the Ladies Committee of the New England Medical Center yesterday at the Boston Floating Hospital.

Plans were discussed for providing a merrier and brighter Christmas for the little inmates of the Floating Hospital, and the other institutions which comprise the medical center.

Mrs. James Russell, who is in charge of decorating the hospitals, Mrs. Robert Emmons whose responsibility is to provide Christmas trees and greens, and Mrs. Frederick Blodgett of Dover, who is to superintend the wrapping of gifts for the youngsters, were all present.

Miss Edith Canterbury, chief of the social service department, heads the committee of social service workers who will select names of patients to whom gift baskets will be sent on Christmas day.

Other committee members attending were Mrs. Charles Cabot, Mrs. Leonard Carmichael, Mrs. John Bird, Mrs. Arthur Coburn, Jr., Mrs. John A. Cousins, Mrs. Conrad Hobbs, Mrs. Charles G. New Potato Recipes

By MARTHA LEE

Some day some one will pen an ode to the white potato that will give it proper honor as a great food. By and large, people are prone to just passively accept the white potato as something we always have and always will have, without full appreciation of how greatly it contributes to human health. The truth is we do not eat enough potatoes, considering the many ways that their flesh can be used.

Think what a variety of food factors can be had in a single serving of potatoes at the cost of but a fraction of a cent. Potatoes are a good source of vitamin C. As a matter of fact, a single serving a day will provide one-third of your daily requirements of this valuable vitamin. They contain vitamins A, B and G, too, calcium, phosphorus and carbohydrates. They are among the most highly available of all foods, provide bulk and food energy, and to top it all are easily digestible.

BELGIAN BAKED POTATOES

6 medium potatoes
Melted butter
Salt and pepper
Wash potatoes and cut into strips a little smaller than for French frying. Soak for half an hour in cold water and dry thoroughly. Place in a shallow baking pan, brush generously with melted butter and bake in a moderately hot oven of 425 deg. F. until well browned on all sides. Turn frequently during the baking, that browning may be even. Add a little melted butter, if needed, during baking. When done, sprinkle well with salt. Potatoes prepared in this manner are delicious and similar to French fried potatoes. Makes 6 servings.

SUPREME STUFFED POTATOES

4 to 6 baking potatoes
1/2 cup grated cheese
2 tsp. butter
1 tsp. parsley, minced
1/4 cup celery, finely minced
1/4 cup blanched almonds, chopped
1 cup thick white sauce
Salt, pepper, paprika
Bake potatoes in hot oven (400 deg. F.) one hour or until nearly split and remove pulp. Combine with all other ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pile mixture into shells and bake five minutes longer to reheat and brown lightly. Thin strip of bacon may be added to top if desired. Makes four to six servings.

OYSTER BAKED POTATOES

6 potatoes for baking, uniform size
6 tbsp. butter
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/4 tsp. paprika
6 tbsp. milk or cream
6 raw oysters
French dressing
1/2 cup buttered bread crumbs
Clean potatoes well, brush with melted fat, and bake in hot oven (400 deg. F.) for about one hour, or until they may be pierced easily with a fork. Cut a slit 3/4 inch from one side, scoop out inside and mash well with the butter, salt, pepper, paprika and cream. Refill the shells with the potato mixture, making an impression in the center of each. Press the oysters, which have stood for half an hour in French dressing, into the potatoes. Cover with the buttered bread crumbs and return to a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 20 minutes or until crumbs are brown. Makes 6 servings.

CREAMED POTATOES IN SHELLS

6 potatoes
1 tbsp. soft fat
1 tsp. salt
2 cups thin white sauce
2 tbsp. diced pimiento
2 tbsp. grated cheese
Paprika
Scrub potatoes and rub with fat. Bake in very hot oven (450 deg. F.) 1 hour or until tender. Remove from oven. Cut a lengthwise slice from the top of each. With a small spatula mark the inside of each potato into small squares. Remove carefully without breaking shells. Sprinkle with salt. Combine white sauce and pimiento and lightly stir in potato. Heap diced, creamed potato lightly into shells. Sprinkle with cheese and dust with paprika. Return to oven until cheese is melted. Makes 6 servings.

Smart Set Fashions

Zipper Tab Disguise

IT'S A WOMAN designer's idea... Claire Baxter, wife of a prominent jeweler, figured out a clever device that puts zip into fashion by making it possible to cover the unsightly slide fastener tab with a decorative bit of jewelry... to be worn on dresses, gloves and handbags. And, incidentally, not a bad thing for hubby's business! For a very style-conscious person this turtle "tabby" of moonstones set in silver was designed. A most unusual gift idea.—ANNICE BRINK.

Good Manners

Solving Some Date Problems

By MRS. BECKMAN

One of the questions frequently asked me is: "What is the most tactful thing to say if you want to refuse a boy a date?"

The answer depends on what you want your refusal to mean. If, in refusing, you wish to discourage further attempts of the boy to date you, the most tactful thing to say is, "I'm sorry, but I'm going to be busy on Saturday evening." If the boy continues to ask you for dates and you don't want to go out with him, you'll have to continue to give "busy" as your excuse. Eventually he'll get the point!

A FUTURE INVITATION

But if you don't want to close the door on future invitations from him, then you should give a more specific reason: "I'm so sorry that I can't see you on Saturday. My two cousins are arriving from Chicago on Friday to spend the weekend with us."

This leaves the suggestion of "another time" up to the boy. Question: "When a boy calls for me at my house, should I introduce him to my mother, or to any other member of my family who happens to be around?"

Yes, by all means. Not to do this shows that your thinking is all wrong, and that your manners are shoddy. Do the young man the honor of introducing him to your mother—always—and to any other member of your family who happens to be around. This is also, of course, a courtesy you owe your family.

WHO SPEAKS FIRST?

Question—"Is it the girl or boy who should bow or speak first, when they meet?"

The girl is given the privilege of acknowledging a acquaintance with a boy. Generally, however, when they know each other well or even fairly well this formality isn't observed, and they bow or speak simultaneously.

Question—"How should a girl acknowledge a compliment from a boy?"

By saying a gracious "Thank you" or "Thank you very much." But, I'm so glad you like it." Her words should be gracious, but a bit on the casual side—she shouldn't appear overawed.

THEY had told Brinda at the hospital she might see Dick Malden between five and six. She found him propped up in bed, his head bandaged, his left arm in a cast, his chest swathed like that of a mummy. He waited until the nurse left the room.

"Brinda, I've been doing a lot of thinking. And the upshot of it is—well, dear, it's that I love you and what's more, I'm going to marry you as soon as I get out of here."

Her eyes opened wide. "Really?" she said, with a queer smile. "How very sweet of you, Dick! And don't I have anything to say about it?"

"Come here," he answered. And, as she was slow to comply, "Remember, I'm a sick man and if you provoke me, I may suffer a relapse. That's better. Now, bend over." His free arm went around her shoulders and he pulled her face to his. "I love you, Brinda! I adore you!"

Her resistance was mild. And, when their lips met, it ceased.

"Dick!" she whispered. "My dearest dear!"

"You're not just humming a sick man?" he said, after a while.

"I think I've always loved you," she said, her voice soft and warm. "Anyway, since we were in school. And it all came back when I saw you again."

"Understand." His eyes devoured her. "It was that way with me, too. Only I didn't have brains enough to know it."

"When did you find out?"

"Lying here, thinking. What a close call I had. You saved my life, you know."

"How?"

"That bomb was meant for me. You see, I switched off the laboratory lights when I went out for tobacco. The bomb was rigged up to go off when I switched them on again. They found the wires."

Brinda's hand went to her throat. "You mean—?"

"If I'd gone back when I intended, I'd have been blown up instead of that poor guard. It was meant for me. But you came along and saved the day."

Brinda looked bewildered. "You don't mean, by any chance, you want to marry me out of gratitude?"

Dick chuckled. "No, my love. Please understand that I suddenly realized how desperately futile it would have been to die without having married you! Why, darling, it would have been like not having lived at all!"

"SO DIFFERENT?"

She laid her hand gently against his cheek, and he seized and kissed it.

"You're as beautiful!" he said wistfully. "And so different . . . somehow . . . like a new chemical, or a towering big invention—Oh, dash it!"—that doesn't sound romantic, does it?"

"It's romantic enough," Brinda replied. "It's romance just being here—having you alive—when—" she shivered—"you might so easily have been killed."

Principal Characters In Today's Chapter

BRINDA, daughter of Mata Hari, notorious World War spy.

WALKER, housekeeper in Sir John Sanderson's home, where Brinda lives.

DICK, Brinda's former school chum, who she still admires.

VASLAV, mysterious Russian nobleman who may be a Nazi agent.

"Yes," he said ruefully. "I thought it was curious when that wall came down on me."

"You shouldn't have taken such a risk!"

"Probably not. But I was afraid someone would beat me to my plans. They're in that dispatch box I gave you, you know." He frowned suddenly. "That was a mistake."

"A mistake? I don't understand."

He read the hurt in her tone.

"Not that way. I know they're safe with you—safer than they would be with anybody. But they're a dangerous thing to possess. There are people who want them badly, and they wouldn't stop at anything—even murder—to get them."

"The enemy, you mean?"

"The enemy—his agents. Spies. Fifth Columnists. People you'd never suspect. You mustn't be sidled with such a responsibility."

"But somebody must take care of it—or shall I bring it to you?" He shook his head.

"No chance of even hiding your soul in a hospital. Better turn it over to—" he hesitated.

Watching his face, she said, "There's something you're not telling me, Dick. Why are these plans so important?"

"That's right, you don't know! Strange . . . it seems you would naturally know everything that concerns me."

In brief sentences, he sketched to her the meaning of his invention. As he talked, his eyes burned with a light she had never seen before, intense and almost frightening.

The Z-ray, he explained rapidly, was the name of a new and strange force he had been investigating. He had not yet solved all its possibilities . . . one was that it could jam radio messages from instruments within a wide radius, converting them into so much gibberish. Another—and he seemed to regard it as more important—was that it extended the range of television far beyond previous limits, permitting pictures to be transmitted over distances of three to five thousand miles.

"But that's tremendous, Dick!" she exclaimed. "It means . . . why, it means you'll be rich, doesn't it?"

Dick made a sound like a groan.

FOR ENGLAND

"You, too?" Then, with feverish intensity, "Don't you see, darling—that's the whole trouble. I don't want to make a fortune from it—now. I want it to save England. And it will, if it isn't commercialized, which would amount to handing it over to the Nazis along with everything else."

"But how—?"

"I know what you're going to say. He was leaning forward, now, his cheeks flushed, his broken ribs and arm forgotten. "You've heard of robot planes? Well, imagine robot planes flying over Germany—our robot planes, equipped with Z-ray television cameras! No pilots. Only a camera, a transmitting apparatus, a rack of bombs and a bomb release trigger also controlled by the Z-wave! Why, we could blow the daylight out of the Germans in a week—without the loss of a single pilot!"

He paused, out of breath. "You see why I went back for the plans?" His voice rose. "It's eyes looked past her. 'Planes,' he said thickly. 'Thousands of 'em—bomb the daylight's out of them—win the war—'"

He stared about wildly, as if he had fallen back.

A nurse entered swiftly. One look, and she was at Dick's side, her fingers on his pulse.

"You should have called me!" she said to Brinda. "He's much worse." She whipped out a thermometer.

"But I don't understand! He was all right a moment ago."

"Nonsense!" said the nurse. "She glanced at the thermometer. 'He must have been delirious for a good quarter-hour!'"

Brinda stared at the nurse.

"I don't believe it!" she declared. "Why, I know—"

She stopped. After all, what did she know? Dick might be only the victim of a feverish delusion. In any case, he had no right to betray his secret.

She lingered anxiously while a doctor entered, ordered a quieting hypodermic.

When she left, he was sleeping quietly. But there was little sleep for Brinda that night. His ardent avowal of love—could it have been only the raving of a sick man? No, she couldn't believe that. Any more than she could doubt the reality of his invention. Yet she remained deeply disturbed, sleepless, and a little frightened.

She determined to take counsel with her guardian next morning. But, before dawn, she fell into deep slumber. When she awoke, Sir John had left for his office.

On impulse, she phoned Dr. MacDonald. "Dinna fret, lassie," said he, after she had confided her misgivings. "It so happens I'm on the staff of this hospital. I'll have a look at your young lieutenant."

As Brinda turned from the phone, she almost bumped into the anguished, dark figure of the housekeeper.

"A letter for you, Miss," Walker said, a slightly apologetic quality into the simple words. "It came by the morning post."

BRINDA REPLIES

The housekeeper watched curiously as Brinda took the heavy envelope and tore it open.

It was from Prince Vaslav. Conscious of Walker's inquisitive gaze, Brinda waited until she was in her room to read it. Unlike his previous communications, the tone was almost business-like. There would be another ballet rehearsal the following evening—this time for principles only. It was trusted she would find it convenient to attend, and would so advise him. Only the signature, a flourishing "Vaslav," was informal.

Brinda studied note and signature thoughtfully. In the flurry of events, she'd almost forgotten the Prince. There was Dick, too . . . somehow, she didn't feel like dancing now. Besides, she found the thought of Vaslav less intriguing than it had been.

Yet she had promised and she couldn't well get out of it without some kind of explanation. She started several notes, but they all seemed abrupt. After all, he was a Prince, and a Prince who had shown her with admiration and courtesy. At last, tearing up her previous notes, she wrote simply that she would come. But, at the same time, she resolved she would attend the rehearsal only to tell him personally what she could not graciously write—that he would have to find a new queen for his Chesapeake Ballet.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

SEVEN of us Grownsters, parents all, sitting around the hearth, cracking nuts, sucking citron, tying wreaths—getting ready for Christmas. Talking about our youngsters, comparing our young ho'days with theirs. Wondering why the modern high school kid was so restless, so discontented. Went, said old man Hallet, was boring 'em, anyway?

"Couldn't be our homes. None of us are rich but we have comfortable homes and the youngsters have the range of them. Plenty of simple fun—home parties once a week, hot dogs and doughnuts, dancing to battered radios and records. But nothing doing on school days—9-30 best, then. Plenty of nice clothes, far better than we had at their age."

NO CHORES to speak of—there aren't in city homes. And certainly nothing tough about their training. Just friendly talk now and then. Or a smiling but firm "No!" when they want to do something plain silly. And yet—

Almost overnight they've changed from a bunch of happy little tads to a gang of sulky, rebellious little grouches. Not that they've done anything serious, yet. But they're chock full of self-pity, ready to blow up over any trifle.

Seems to date from the time they entered Hi and began to get grown-up ideas. Nothing unusual about that—we did, too, at their age. But it's the kind of ideas they get. For instance—

Says 13-year-old Esther: "But wh-y-y, Mom, can't I have a black velvet formal like Lilyan's? I'm as sick of that old blue thing you make. Why have I gotta have home-made clothes, anyway? You make such baby stuff. I'm old enough to know what I want. Why can't you let me have the money to do my own shopping?"

At which point 13-year-old Ted chimes in: "Gosh, do I hafta go on wearing that ole blue suit? All the other fellas are getting tuxes this year. I feel like a fool goin' around in that goofy kid stuff. Why have I gotta wait until college? Just because kids didn't know how to dress when you were young, Dad, is no reason I shouldn't!"

Whereupon Marilyn, aged 14, elaborates on social life in the Youngster Set: "Gee, Mom, I wish we could cut out these silly home parties and go out Saturday nights the way other kids do. Y'know—up to the Gables or down to Tony's. Nobody stays home 'n' plays games any more. You oughta hear the Gang at Hi razz us!"

SO WHAT? Maybe you're saying it's just adolescence. But we were adolescent once, not so long ago. We wanted things, too, sulky and rebelled. But we didn't do it in wholesale, front-page riots. And there wasn't the bitterness in that rebellion which there is in these modern grudges.

Or perhaps you blame it on unemployment. But to my certain knowledge there isn't a youngster of working age in this group who hasn't had a dozen offers. But they're choosy. They've gotta wait until something worth while turns up."

LAXITY in our homes and High schools? For a few mothers? Pre-occupied Dads? Maybe. BUT PERSONALLY I THINK IT'S LARGELY DUE TO OUR VAUNTED HIGH STANDARD OF LIVING. I HONESTLY BELIEVE WE'RE ALL TRYING TO LIVE TOO HIGH WIDE 'N' HANDSOME . . . AND THE KIDS HAVE CAUGHT THE CONTAGION. WANTING THINGS BEYOND BEYOND THEIR AGE OR MERIT.

WITH SCADS OF OVER-INDULGED YOUNGSTERS OF SILLY PARENTS BACKING THEM UP. But maybe I'm wrong. What's YOUR answer?

DON'T GET A LOAN

UNTIL YOU READ THIS TABLE

You can borrow $100 if you can pay back $6.41 a month

You can get a personal loan of $20 to $300 at Household Finance at rates substantially below the law (at maximum)—if you can repay in small monthly installments.

Payments to fit your purse
You may choose the most convenient repayment plan from the table below. Suppose that you need $100 and you can readily repay $9.75 a month. Your installment will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.41 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

See the sample loans and payment plans in the table, classes also made in other amounts and for other periods. Payments in the table repay everything. Household's rate of 25% per month on that part of balance not exceeding $100.

and 25% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100, less than the maximum permitted by the Small Loan Law and the same to extend.

Simple to borrow

We require no study of wage assignment, no checks of bank statements, no credit investigation or notes. No credit investigation of friends or relatives. And you don't have to come to our office—work in your pajamas. We deliver.

The New Baer vs. the Gone, Forgotten Baer

By AUSTEN LAKE

PROFESSIONAL SPORTS' MOST PIXILATED person, the muscular man who grins when you call him Added Adelbert, the only and original Max Baer of the rubber legs, garrulous tongue and schoolgirl heart, is in town to shake the local sugar bush. But he comes not as a glove-thumper but as a thespian with Broadway show troupe in charge of his commercial keeper, Ancil Hoffman.

AUSTEN LAKE

It was rehearsal time in the rococo ruby room of the Hotel Touraine and Max, in tailored elegance, waited with perky show ladies and wasp-waisted gentlemen of the ensemble. A quartet of adolescent males were waiting a close harmonic, "... iff yuh got ryth... um..." to the staccato tinkle of a piano. An ingenue brushed her hay-colored curls, conorted sinuously and leaned in easy intimacy with a male juvenile.

"Sure," said Max, talking in gulps. "I figure to fight 'im next year." He slapped his ham-like fist into the bunch-of-banana hollow of his palm and gurgled "Boy!" Hoffman, like a miniature Santa Claus, nodded and said "September."

The man-he-figure-to-fight, was, at that exact instant shuffling, ghost punching and snorting through his training convolutions in a Friend Street fight studio—the cinnamon-hued Negro named Joe Louis who had once left him hacked, pulped and battered under the ring ropes in the slack attitude of a wood nymph beside a forest pool. And then, in that moment of crisis, the one commanding impulse that survived was the wish to be gay, goofy and theatrical, the predominating urge of his life. Through the wreckage of his cerebral gear, twisted and disordered, his character of clown still dictated a final bit of nonsense. So he had lifted his glove in a last mocking farewell to the 86,000 witnesses in the gloom beyond the ring lights. Remember?

MAX STRETCHED HIS GARGOYLE features in a rubbery leer. "That was the old, gone and forgotten Max Baer," he crowed, as a minor might boast. Today-I-am-a-man. He kissed his fingers to the ceiling and said, "Poof!"—no alcohol, no stay-out-nights, no hot-spot frivolities. Poof! He hunched his anvil-shaped chin in the hollow of a shoulder, feigned his right and stabbed with his left. "Comeskey," he announced, visioning the kayaked fighter crumpling like an empty bag and he, Max, imperiously gazing down at the remains.

He crouched with a narrow-eyed squint, looped his left at an imaginary chin, uppeered with his right and stood back with a Mussolini pout on his broad face. "Galeotto!" he said, staring down at an illusory mess. It was a convincing act and instinctively one's eyes followed his to the vacant floor, half expecting to see a crimson hulk with crumpled ears, eploched face and the porcine puss of Tony Galento.

What about Louis? Ah Louis! ... Max's features brooded in a far-away dream. He massaged his knuckles and in retrospect perhaps his mind went back to the pre-battle days at Speculator, N. Y., when he acted like a small boy about to go to bed in the attic, beset by fancy by unseen spaces and the lurk of night-time menace. It had been human unease in the presence of the unknown—the mental disease commonly recognized among fighters as "Louis distemper." Ah Louis!

He wanted, said Max, three months in the mountains and woods before his next fight. "Yeh, Billy Conn in June," nodded Hoffman like a porcelain mantelpiece mandarin. He wanted to inhale the rich oxygen, trot over rutted roads, chop logs and digest rugged he-man food.

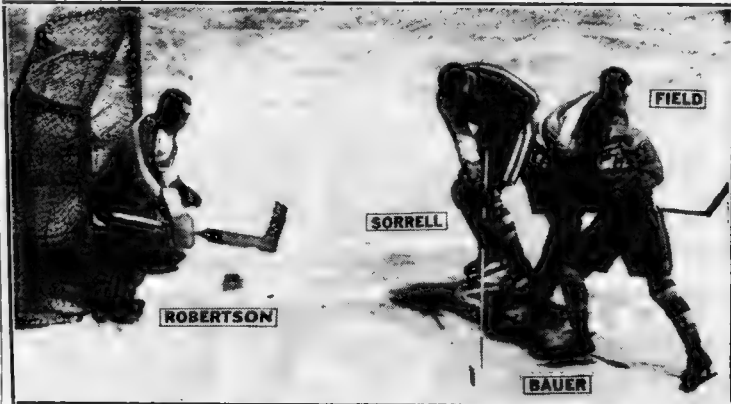

Yet one recalls how he had fretted and fussed in his woody retreat at Speculator, a delightful spot from the viewpoint of oxygen and art. But he had loathed the hills that tumbled away from his dooryard in a purple mist. The September foliage of russets and gold he had hated, too. The splash of the trout that leaped on the silver surface of his lake and the stilly void during the night when only the sleepy chirp of a night bird and the gurgle of a hoot owl broke the quiet. "That was the old, gone and forgotten Baer," he said now!

THE TROUBLE WITH INTERVIEWING MAX is that he insists on the feminine prerogative of changing his mind. Impulses pass through his cerebellum like gusts of wind through a haymow. Thus recently he was quoted by reporters as saying he was through with fighting. But today he says he is still in his physical prime, winter better and ready to battle his way back up the ladder. "First," he said, "I gotta belt over a few buns for practice, eh Pop?" He invariably adds "Eh Pop?" in Hoffman's direction, but seldom waits to see which way Pop jerks his head.

His diet? Max sheathed his clothing about his waist and pirouetted for a view of his lean middle. "Good stuff and little of it," he averred. Which recalls that he was once told while training for an early fight that diet was a vital matter in the conditioning of a fighter. So he hired a dietitian to draw up a food schedule. And when the schedule was prepared, he hired the dietitian to eat the diet, while Max observed the result "in vile corpore," so to speak. Not a bad idea! The fellow picked the food! Now let him eat it!

This theatrical stuff was a pleasant interlude, a kind of fun-interval between the manly business of knocking people's ears off. There was no price on his head now and he had paid off the last of them people who had owned pieces of his person. Max rocked with laughter. "I used to pawn pieces of myself whenever I needed ready cash. Another guy would have hocked his watch or his overcoat, but I just put a five per cent hunk of myself in pawn for as little as $300 and gave the purchaser a receipt." It had cost him, he said, "about $250,000 to buy back all his fragments and another $75,000 in lawyer's fees. But now, he thought, he had bought all of himself back, though there might still be a toe or a finger owned elsewhere. But that was the old, gone and forgotten Baer. Sq he said.

Bruins Try Again For 1st Home Win

TWO AGAINST ONE—Sorrell and Field, of the Americans, gang up on Bauer (17), of the Bruins, to spoil his shot at Madison Square Garden Sunday night. The Amerks' goalie, Robertson, stuffs himself into the cage, ready to stop the puck. The Bruins tallied seven times in the third period to defeat the Amerks, 10-3.

Minus the services of Tommy Anderson, "Busher" Jackson, "Peanut" O'Flaherty and Pete Slobodian, the New York Americans will wind up their first home and home series of the 1940-41 campaign with the Bruins tonight at the Boston Garden.

The Bruins have played four games on home ice but all they have to show for their efforts is a tie with the Detroit Red Wings.

They were nosed out of the opening game 6 to 5 by the Chicago Blackhawks, knocked off by the Toronto Maple Leafs 4 to 1 in their second start and then, after winding up deadlocked with the Red Wings, Les Canadiens took them over the jumps to win 3 to 2 a week ago.

SHAKEUP BRINGS RESULTS

Apparently, Manager Art Ross wasn't satisfied with the results his Bruins have been producing at home, for after they'd lost to the Flying Frenchmen, he shook up his defense combinations and promoted Eddie Wiseman to the Cowley line.

Judging from the 10 to 3 victory the Bruins turned in against the Amerks in New York, Manager Ross hit on a winning combination.

With Bill Cowley, the best play maker in the N. H. L. feeding him, Eddie Wiseman scored three times in the opening period, while the "cowboy" also assisted on a Roy Conacher tally and scored twice himself, for a total of six points.

LOSE SEVERAL KEYMEN

Manager Red Dutton and his Amerks were doing all right until some of their keymen were victims of the injury line.

In the first Ranger game, Pat Slobodian, a two-fisted rookie defense man, was laid low with a fractured cheek bone in the third period during a mixup with Phil Watson. Then last week, "Busher" Jackson suffered a broken nose and "Peanut" O'Flaherty retired from the firing line with a twisted knee. On Sunday night, Tommy Anderson stopped Eddie Wiseman's duck with his right eye and was hospitalized.

WORTHY Foe FOR ALL

Although they have been on the winning end of but three games, the Americans had given every opponent a real tussle until they ran afoul of Maple Leafs and Bruins over the week-end. Hank Goldup, the lanky Left, went on a scoring rampage in Toronto Saturday night and made four of the six goals and the following night, Eddie Wiseman and Bill Cowley ganged up on the Dutton Men.

Going into tonight's game with the Bruins, the Americans have lost only two home and home series, Toronto and Detroit.

The Leafs beat them 2 to 1 in New York when Earl Robertson was injured and 2½-year-old Charlie Reyer, Eddie Shore's Springfield Indian goal minder, was in the nets. And, of course, the Daymen did a job on them last Saturday while three of their stars were out of the lineup.

HAWKS EASY FOR AMERKS

The Red Wings have beaten the Amerks twice but both games were close and hard fought. The Dutton men have split even with their traditional rivals, Rangers, and also with Les Canadiens, but they've done even better with the Blackhawks, shutting them out in the Windy City and holding them to a tie in New York.

Although there doesn't seem to be much hope for them to square accounts with the Bruins, the Americans will be in there fighting from the opening faceoff until the final whistle.

SPORT-O-GRIMES

There'll be two new members inducted to the Record-American All Scholastic Board tonight at the Hotel Lenox. George Kennaely, Reverse High School and Dinny Gildea, coach of the championship Everett squad, are the newcomers... Don't confuse Paul Dorrington with the punchy lineman. The Holy Cross snapperback has plenty on the ball in football and also as an after dinner orator.

Mike Sweeney, the former Pennsylvania basketball star, is, and uncle of Lou Young, Jr. During his recent visit here to attend the Football Writers' luncheon and the Gridiron Club meeting, Lou Young, Jr., stopped with his "roomie" Bob O'Brien... Harry Ellington, the Big Green line coach, would like to have a few more sons of famous gridiron figures matriculate at Dartmouth.

After steering him over many rough spots for years, some football officials resent "Red" Freilich's "better than thou" attitude. The Brookline Boston College Club will tender George Kerr, a fellow townsman, who has played a fine brand of guard for the Eagles for three years, a testimonial dinner December 10 at the town gymnasium. Until Kerr came up over the football horizon, Harry Lenoyne was Brookline's most outstanding guard. Pat Hanley is working on a new defense play. With it he hopes to stop after dinner speakers.

Head Coach Frank Leahy will be guest of honor at the Seitate

It will be weeks before Joe Sheekotski recovers from that game with B. C. The news service writers are very hungry for "stories" when they keep repeating that Eddie Miller of the Bees is Cincinnati bound... Bert Nicols, pro at the Belmont Country Club, planned to be at Puchat, N. C., before the first of the month, but he's still here reading around in the snow. With everything set to depart for the South, Mrs. Nicols was a poison ivy victim and it will be at least a week before she will be able to travel. The Cape Cod golf courses are all playable and they are getting a nice play over the week-ends. BILL GRIMES.

PACINO REACHES N. E. ALL-AMERICA FINALS³¹

By WALTER KILEY

Larry Pacino, Roxbury middleweight, made good his boast and won his way into next Monday night's New England All-America amateur boxing championship finals at the Boston Garden as the result of three spectacular winning performances in last night's fourth and final set of tryouts at the Boston Arena.

The Roxbury Italian, knocked out in a spectacular upset a week earlier, despatched his opponents on this occasion in efficient, workmanlike manner and thereby earned the right to a return crack at Tommy Hill, the Lowell southpaw, who conquered him in the earlier qualifying test.

Pacino's pair of knockouts and a three round decision highlighted a night of 30 bouts, an even dozen of which ended in K. O.'s, and added enthusiastic action to a program of slam-bang runching which more than found favor with a gallery of some 4800 spectators.

SWEET REVENGE—Roxbury's Larry Pacino, hard hitting middleweight, knocked out Jack Kearney of Brookline in the first few seconds of the opening round of the 160-pound finals at the Arena. Pacino, upset a week ago, thereby won his way into the N. E. All-America Championships.

SPARRING FOR OPENING—Alphonse Brien of Lawrence (left) proved himself a gamester despite his defeat to Guy Fasulo of Boston (right) in the 147-pound finals of the New England All-America tryouts at the Arena. The decision could have gone either way.

Actually, however, much of the night's real plaudits were showered on the novices who made up for their inexperience with one display of gameness and fighting heart after another.

The novices were immense. Not one of the dozen or thereabouts who took to the Arena ring would ever admit defeat. They put on a show which will go down in local simon-pure history as exceptional in grueling milling.

Pacino first met Mike Cocozzo of Haverhill and the latter dished out a combination of clowning, defensive talent and open-gloved socking which had the gallery roaring with amusement.

Cocozzo, an actor in the ring if there ever was one, at one time pretended to be knocked out and laid face down on the canvas, seemingly out.

EXTENDED BY MULLIGAN

But to the amazement of all, he turned to his feet and set sail for Pacino, upcutting with his open fist and for a moment catching Pacino off guard. The Roxbury favorite was credited with the knockout when Cocozzo was unable to return for the third round on account of a split lip.

Pacino then was extended to the limit to elave off the late rush of the hard-hitting southpaw, Jim Mulligan of Lowell, in the semi-finals. The bout was a thriller all the way, Mulligan making a third round rally which fell just short of getting him the verdict.

The final was short and sweet. Pacino snapping a short left hook to the chin of Brookline's Jack Kearney which dropped the latter in the first 15 seconds of the battle. Kearney showed the effects of a bitterly contested semi-finals K. O. victory over Eddie Yutkin of Cambridge.

Guy Fasulo, a hard, two fist fighter, was extended every inch of the way to win the 147-pound final over Alphonse Brien of Lawrence. The two stood toe to toe and tossed punches at each other with reckless abandon. The decision could have gone either way without injustice being done. Both had looked impressive in their performances in the trials and semi-finals.

John Lopes, colored boy from New Bedford, made short work of Howard Beane of Roxbury in the 175-pound final. Lopes clubbed Beane into first round submission, shooting the white boy to the canvas twice before settling him for good.

K. O'D IN FIRST

Al Storza of Boston, a rusher who threw hooks with left and right, earned the decision over Frank Tuscano of Boston in the 126-pound final. It was three rounds of rapid-fire milling with Tuscano, awkwardly clever, forcing the going but falling short in the heavy hitting department.

A terrific right to the jaw had floored George Nannoulis of New Bedford, Storza's semi-finals opponent. It was a first round K. O.

Little Tommy Luckman of Brockton finally found the pot of gold at the end of the tryouts, winning the 112-pound final in his third successive bid for the right to enter the New England championship lists.

Luckman got a second round K. O. over James Rice of Haverhill when the latter fought himself to the point of exhaustion and proved an easy target.

NEVER AN IDEAL MOMENT

Bill Dupee, gigantic Cambridge Negro, floored Albin Tumas of Dorchester in the opening round of the semi-finals of the heavyweight division and then won the final when Peter Santoro of Norwood was forced to default as the result of an injury sustained as he pulled out a bruising semi-finals decision over Federico Cimino of Providence. The latter was pulled from the open bell to the last, with the Norwood boy's southpaw jolts earning him the verdict.

Lowell's Francis Welch who made a marked impression in his first showing at the Arena a week earlier, won the 135-pound title by the default of Sam Di Vincenzo of Haverhill who also ran afoul of an earlier bout injury.

Cowley Has Set Up 9 Goals for Bruins

MONTREAL, Dec. 3 (AP)—The players who score the goals get the most of the cheers from hockey fans, but there's no getting around the fact that it's the ones who make the plays who gets results in the scoring column.

It may be because scorers are liberals when it comes to handing out assists, but the first four players on this week's scoring list, issued from National Hockey League headquarters, are play-makers rather than goal getters.

Tied for first place with 12 points apiece are Bryan Hextall of the New York Rangers and Bill Cowley of the Boston Bruins. One point behind them are Syd Howe of the Detroit Red Wings, last week's leader, and Phil Watson of the Chicago Black Hawks.

Cowley collected the season's outstanding scoring feat Sunday night when he elected six points in Boston's 13-3 rout of the New York Americans. He made two goals and four assists in that game to bring his season's total to three goals and nine assists.

He's the leading play-maker, having a margin of one assist over

Watson. Hextall, who scored six points during the past week, has seven assists to tie with Cowley and Pete Langelle of Toronto.

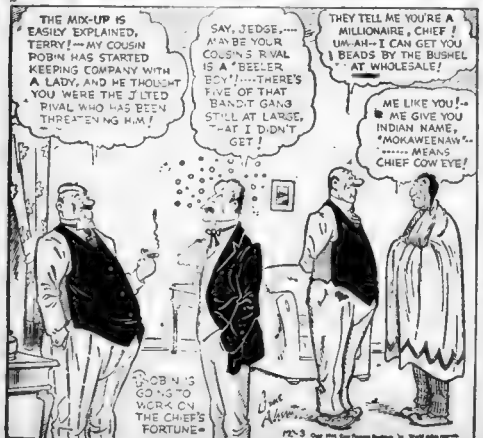

Goldup drove in four goals last week for a total of seven, one more than Drillon and another Toronto player, Dave (Sweeney) Schirner. Leading "bad man" according to official statistics, which don't include misconduct penalties, is Jimmy Orlando of Detroit with a total of 18 minutes in the penalty box.

Big Freighter Aground In Cape Cod Canal

BUZZARDS BAY, Dec. 2 (AP)—The 5000-ton freighter El Almirante went aground today in the Cape Cod canal. The U. S. dredge Marshall was summoned to assist in an attempt to float the ship at high tide, 11 a. m., and the Coast Guard cutter Argos was dispatched from Newport, R. I. Observers said the west-bound freighter evidently poked her nose into mud or sand on the west side of the channel.

5 for Wilson; $74 Profit

Bidding fair to emulate the high success he attained in the recent Bowie meeting, in which GREEN RACE SPECIALISTS were predominant in the picking of winners, Dave Wilson, premier turf handicapper in the East, yesterday saw five of his top choices, including the Daily Double, finish as he called them, on the opening day of the Charles Town meeting.

His other two top choices on the seven race card finished second. Jack Carpenter, subbing for Fred Keats who is on vacation, made his GREEN RACE SPECIAL debut an auspicious one as four of his top choices bobbed down in front.

Carpenter's winners were: Schley Goree, $9.80; Pamunkey, $8.40; Cheer Me, $3.60; and Five O Four, $6.00.

Wilson also picked two winning bets in his daily code special, an exclusive feature of the GREEN RACE SPECIAL, which resulted in a total profit for the day of $74.60.

The table:

Horse	Bet	Finish	Payoff	Profit	Loss
Buddy Al	$2.00	2nd	$2.60		$2.00
Westing	2.00	Won	7.40	$5.40
Schley Goree	2.00	Won	9.80	7.80
Daily Double	2.00	Won	46.00	44.00
Pamunkey	2.00	Won	8.40	6.40
Cheer Me	2.00	Won	3.60	1.60
Red Wrack	2.00	2nd	3.00		2.00
Five O Four	2.00	Won	6.00	4.00
Code horses:
Pamunkey	2.00	Won	8.40	6.40
Five O Four	2.00	Won	6.00	4.00

Total Loss $79.60 $4.00

Total profit $74.60

Although the place prices were of the lean sort, a place parlay of $2.00 would have resulted in a return of $115.25, which isn't exactly bad for a small deuce.

The GREEN RACE SPECIAL besides the tops in handicappers includes a host of exclusive features including late lines, jockey changes, late scratches and late track conditions.

The man in this case is 19-year-old Robin Lee of St. Paul, Minn. Robin has been a past master for years. His father, in possession of a figure skater himself, started him off when he was four years old and young Lee took to the ice immediately. Before long, he was astounding the cynical observers of his native town.

During his grammar school days he cleaned up all sorts of amateur skating competitions and at 13 years of age, he won the United States figure skating championship. Just to prove he was no flash in the pan, Robin corralled the title for the next four years in succession and in 1936, when but 15, represented Uncle Sam in the Olympic games. He finished eighth in world competition.

Determined to win the world title in the 1940 games, Robin Lee resisted all overtures to turn professional and trained his eyes on the Finland games which the present world crisis prevented from taking place.

Following the cancellation, Lee was persuaded to turn professional and signed his first contract under the banner of "Ice Capades of 1941." By JACK CONWAY

HARRY KELLEY, who formerly trained Jim Maloney and Jack Sharkey, says Al McCoy's best chance of winning against Joe Louis in their Garden bout on December 16 will be by coming out punching at the bell in the first round.

"Off the records, one must pick Louis to win," said Kelley, "but a puncher like McCoy always has a chance . . . for McCoy to win, he must gamble a bit in the early part of the fight. . . If he is lucky enough to nail Louis with a solid left hook or a right hand punch to the jaw, the champion may become confused and groggy in which case anything can happen. . . Louis is a terrific puncher himself and if McCoy stands back and permits the 'Brown Bomber' to set his own pace he is going to find himself in trouble."

Tex Rickard never permitted a champion under his promotion to take a risk such as Louis will assume in meeting McCoy. . . Rickard believed in keeping a title holder idle until the big money shot came along.

"It is foolish for a champion to step around the country meeting all-comers," Rickard told me. . . "Anything can happen in a fight. . . The title holder may break one of his hands, or suffer a bad cut. . . He can get licked without his opponent doing much to him. . . Champions always worry in these so-called easy matches. . . They know everyone expects them to win, and they are fearful they will make a mistake that will bring about their defeat."

Louis' title is worth a million dollars. . . This is quite an asset to toss into the ring when the champion's end of the purse will not top $25,000.

Frank Mason, in charge of the ticket sale for the Goodwin Club, says the advance sale for the Louis-McCoy bout has already passed the $20,000 mark. . . A sellout would mean a gate of $50,000 which would be a new high for a boxing show in Boston. . . The present mark is $56,000 and was established by the Sharkey-Maloney bout that was staged by the Crosscup-Pishon Post at Braves Field in 1925. . . George Wiswell was in charge of that match.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT that the Boston College eleven would train at Bay St. Louis, 53 miles outside of New Orleans, for its Sugar Bowl game with Tennessee awakened memories of the 75 round bout between John L. Sullivan, famous Boston "Strong Boy," and Jake Kilrain that was held at Richburg, Miss., July 8, 1889. . . This bout was originally planned for Bay St. Louis, but was banned by the local authorities. . . Charley Mooney, Western Union manager in this office, is my authority for the fact Sullivan won the decision, and three years later, in September, 1892, lost his championship to Jim Corbett in New Orleans.

The Sullivan-Kilrain bout was the last important ring contest fought under London prize ring rules in which the contestants battled it out with bare knuckles.

Bill Coker, United Fruit Co. executive who has the first pair of Boston College-Tennessee football tickets received in Boston, was formerly a member of the Louisiana Boxing Commission. . . Bill has been Boston College's No. 1 rooter in New Orleans, and did much to make the Sugar Bowl game possible.

"Jack Dempsey passed through New Orleans on his way to the Coast following his bout with Jack Sharkey," Coker told me. . . "Dempsey's face was pretty badly battered as a result of Sharkey's punches. . . Dempsey told me that Sharkey would have won if he had boxed him instead of taking chances by trading blows. . . "When Dempsey won first champion he only weighed 182 to 183 pounds. . . He had a perfect build and was one of the finest looking athletes I have ever seen."

COACHES AND sports writers at the weekly football luncheon at the Parker House did everything possible to let the world know what a fine job Joe Sheeketski, Holy Cross coach, did in bringing an inspired football team to Fenway Park. . . Holy Cross played well enough to win an ordinary game against the best possible opposition. . . Perhaps the veteran football fan seated next to James P. Murphy, Managing Editor of the Daily Record, had the best size up of the game at the end of the first period.

"Son," said the veteran with the score 0 to 0 at the end of the first period, "this game will be decided by a break."

Boston College got the break on a fumble, and then had the scoring punch to get a touchdown.

Joe Sheeketski of Holy Cross showed real ability to keep up the spirit of his club despite early season injuries. . . It was a perfectly coached Purple team that had Boston College in trouble for most of the game. . . Sheeketski did a brilliant job in coaching his players as to how to bottle up Charley O'Rourke.

Max Baer goes actor tonight at the Colonial Theater, and he promises to furnish plenty of laughs.

FIGHT PURSES HELD UP

TORONTO, Dec. 3 (AP)—The purses of Lou Salica of New York, world bantamweight boxing champion, and Small Montana of San Francisco were ordered held up by the Ontario Athletic Commission today while it investigated last night's fight in which Salica was awarded a technical knockout in the third round.

Montana went down 10 times before Referee Bill Burke stopped the fight.

Dr. Tom Flommerfelt, commission doctor, examined Montana after the fight and said he thought he had a torn muscle in the ribs, on which Salica had drummed steadily with both hands. X-ray examinations showed no breaks and no scars from former breaks or injuries.

Joe Kirkwood's Trick Shot Clubs Lost in Blaze

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3 (AP)—Fire destroyed Golf Pro Joe Kirkwood's set of trick shot golf clubs and delayed his annual winter exhibition tour, it was disclosed today.

The blaze swept the Huntingdon Valley Country Club's frame supply shop Sunday night. Besides Kirkwood's personal set of clubs, club members lost 130 sets, valued at $15,000.

Mike Jacobs Plans Two Heavy Bouts

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (INS)—Promoter Mike Jacobs is planning two 10-round heavyweight bouts at Madison Square Garden on Jan. 16.

In one, Lou Nova, of California, will attempt to continue his comeback by meeting Pat Comiskey, youthful New Jersey slugger, and in the other Lee Savold, former bartender from Des Moines, will face Bill Poland, a New York battler.

Record Deer Kill: 5 Hunters Die

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 3 (AP)—A record kill of deer on the season's opening day in Pennsylvania's snow-covered woodlands was indicated today by increasing reports that included a death list of five hunters.

Brought out in throngs by the game commission's ruling that both doe and bucks were legal quarry, the red-capped hunters banged away throughout the State all day yesterday although hampered in

All-Scholastic Board Meets at Lenox Tonight

By SAM BROGNA

When the Boston Evening American-Daily Record Board of Coaches meet tonight at the Hotel Lenox to select the All-Scholastic football team for 1940, it is expected they will follow the procedure of former years.

Ever since the board was organized seven years ago, it decides on picking one team with no utility players or second team added. There was however, a select honor roll, greatly limited, which embraced schoolboy gridderes who showed the greatest ability during the campaign. The same honor roll is expected to accompany this year's "All" team.

In practically all circles, the team selected by this board, is considered the one and only scholastic eleven and is stamped as "official." This is because, the coaches who sit in on these round table confabs, are men who know their football and see the schoolboys perform each week.

EVERY SCHOOL COVERED

Every part of Greater Boston is covered by these mentors, including the smallest high school around. Each player who has displayed any kind of a creditable showing at one time or another during the course of the gridiron season, is taken into consideration with the result, one player may be the center of discussion for over an hour. This has happened in the past a number of times.

One change has been made on the board this year, the second since its organization in 1933. Two new coaches have been added to the selective list recently and will be making their first appearance tonight on the board.

TWO NEW COMERS

George Kennedy, Revere High School and Dennis Gildea, Everett High school, are the new coaches. This will be the first time that the board was represented by more than six members. Added to the half dozen men who already comprise the board, the sponsoring papers feel that it will offer to the public, a greater, if possible, all scholastic eleven.

The other coaches are Harry Downes, Brookline high; Jim Mansfield, Haverhill high; Bill Broderick, Salem high; Fred Ostergren, Arlington high, Ed "Skip"

Sherlock, Hyde Park high and Bill Ohrenberger, Boston English. All, with the exception of Downes, have been working as a committee for the past seven years in picking the "All" teams.

TO SET DATE

Downes was added two years ago replacing Charlie Dickerman who resigned at Somerville to become faculty manager of the school.

With the addition of Kennedy and Gildea, practically every corner and nook in and around Greater Boston will be scanned and nothing overlooked. Sherlock and Ohrenberger represent the Boston schools, Kennedy and Broderick the North Shore, and the other four, Greater Boston in general.

Following tonight's meeting a definite date will be announced in releasing the 1940 official All Scholastic eleven.

Kaplan, Godoy Win Decisions

CLEVELAND, Dec. 3 (AP)—Rugged Arturo Godoy, fighting desperately in his drive for another bout with Champion Joe Louis, battered and pounded Tony Muste for ten rounds here, but the tough Chicagoan refused to give in, and the South American had to be content with a decision.

Mike Kaplan of Boston, New England welterweight champion, took a decision over Savio Turiello of New York in a 10-round bout.

Stanford, 2 to 1, Over Nebraska

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3 (INS)—The odds probably will favor Stanford over Nebraska in the Rose Bowl if it was predicted today by San Francisco betting commissioners.

One commissioner predicted the Cornhuskers would be 2 to 1 underdogs, but another described Nebraska as "no pushover" and said he was "quitting even money."

Coaches Aid Leahy With Data on Vols

By BILL GRIMES

While his Eagles are resting up after their strenuous season, Head Coach Frank W. Leahy is probably as busy as he has been all fall.

In the first place, Frank Leahy is in great demand as an after-dinner speaker. He is buried under an avalanche of invitations to attend this and that affair. Right now he is booked up solid until the day Boston College leaves for Bay St. Louis, Miss. His greatest trouble is convincing promoters of B. C. alumni smokers that he has no more open dates, despite the fact that he is scheduled to appear at from two to four places on many nights.

Frank Leahy spent the week-end contacting his friends among the coaching fraternity whose eleven played the Tennessee Vols this season. Boston College didn't scout Tennessee. And, in all probability, the Vols didn't scout the Eagles.

The latter slip is Major Bob Neyland's problem. Frank Leahy has his own worries, particularly after the tribute that Head Coach Dick Harlow of Harvard paid to the Neyland coached squad at the Football Writers' Association luncheon at the Parker House.

IRISH COACHES IN SOUTH

Fortunately, for Frank Leahy and Boston College, the Eagles' mentor has a footballically inclined friend down in Tennessee who has been a close observer of the Vols for four or five years. Already Coach Leahy has received word from the Tennessee scout that the Vols of 1940 are "tops" among college eleven.

During the 1940 season, Tennessee played only Southern colleges, most of which played under "cracker" coaches. But, two former Notre Dame players sent their eleven against the Vols, Frank Thomas, coach at the University of Alabama, and Tom Lieb who was the chief mentor at the University of Florida.

LEAHY WELL LIKED

Frank Leahy has an exceptionally wide acquaintance among football coaches. He has always been a straight shooter. He's a type which other coaches would go to any extreme to aid. He has been an instructor at innumerable football coaching schools. And, he has never been known to hold back any football data. Moreover, he's always been anxious and willing to listen to the other fellows' troubles and will go out of his way to help a friend and express his opinions without fear or favor.

Between them, Frank Thomas and Tom Lieb will tell Frank Leahy plenty about Bob Neyland's Vols of Tennessee. Thomas should be particularly well posted on Tennessee. His Bama eleven have been stopped by the Vols annually for at least three seasons.

NEYLAND PICKS SPOTS

There's a possibility that Frank Leahy will receive considerable unsolicited information concerning Tennessee from brothers in the coaching fraternity.

It's the contention of many Southern coaches that Major Neyland, who is in complete charge of the scheduling football games, doesn't book the strongest opponents. They claim that Tennessee's three consecutive seasons without a defeat is due in no small measure to Neyland's keenness in selecting opponents.

HARLOW COULD HELP
In all probability, Frank Leahy will be in a few huddles with Dick Harlow before he starts for Bay St. Louis, Miss. The Harvard coach

Yankees Eye Draft, Keep Married Men

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (INS)—Any trading the New York Yankees do will be with the draft situation in mind, President Ed Barrow revealed today.

"We are not taking any chances trading off some of our married veterans not likely to be drafted because they might come in handy if the youngsters are called," Barrow explained.

"THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME"—Jimmy Hatlo's humorous cartoons of life as it really is a regular feature in the Boston Evening American.

has seen Tennessee in action and being a very observant football man with a retentive mind, Dick Harlow is in a position to turn over some valuable information to Leahy.

The B. C. squad will not return to football until next Monday. They've been allowed to break training and instructed to take a complete rest this week. On Monday next, the Eagles will start again and the Vols will be driven at top speed until New Year's Day, when they'll make their second appearance of the season in the Tulane Stadium.

Chi Student Paper Lauds Shaughnessy

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Daily Maroon, University of Chicago student newspaper, asserted in an editorial today that Clark Shaughnessy, Stanford football coach, formerly at Chicago, "had disproved charges occasionally leveled against him that he failed to inspire confidence and lacked the ability to make his men fight."

Hailing the former Chicago coach, whose unbeaten team will battle Nebraska in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, as a "superb tactician," the editorial declared: "Not only did the Indians out-think their rivals, they outfought them in every game and it was Shaughnessy who inspired that fight."

Shaughnessy, the newspaper asserted, "was a master strategist and an excellent coach. . . a friendly, co-operative sort of man who made the most of the skinny material that an unsabotaged team provided him with, and who never complained of the competition he was forced to face under the conditions."

HOME TOWN HONORS O'ROURKE TONIGHT

Boston College's All-America halfback, Charles "The Chuck" O'Rourke, will be honored by hundreds of admirers at a mammoth testimonial banquet tonight at the Malden Armory.

O'Rourke, winner of the first team honors on the William Randolph Hearst All America team, closed out his local career as a collegian in the Holy Cross game last week end.

Tonight's testimonial will make the second honor which has come to Charlie since the closeout contest with the Cross.

GIVEN LOWE TROPHY

O'Rourke was named the outstanding college football player in New England by the Gridiron Club of Boston. The selection carried with it the coveted George H. "Bulger" Lowe Memorial Trophy awarded annually by the club.

Rev. John J. Sheehan, Catholic Youth Organization head in Malden, who is chairman of the testimonial, reports a healthy interest in the affair. Originally scheduled to be held at the new Malden High School the testimonial was shifted to the Armory to accommodate the expected throng.

MAJORS TO ATTEND

Invited guests include Mrs. Arthur Orcutt, mother of the Eagle star; Mayor Maurice E. Tobin of Boston, ever a staunch Boston College booster; Mayor William A. Hastings of Malden, Head Coach Frank Leahy and his assistants, Ed McKeever, Johnny Druza, Joe McArdle and Tom Powers; Rev. Maurice V. Dulles, faculty manager of athletics at Boston College, and the entire Boston College eastern intercollegiate football championship squad.

Chairman Fr. Sheehan is being assisted in his final plans by a committee which includes Warren McGuirk, former B. C. captain and present coach of Malden high school; Ray Perry, another former Eagle star and a cousin of O'Rourke, and Bill Sullivan, '26, who will also be toastmaster at tonight's affair.

HE'S A SMILER NOW—Last fall, Clark Shaughnessy had a right to be sad. He coached Chicago, which dropped football. Clark went to Stanford this year, where his Indians flattened everything in sight. Here Clark playfully ruffles hair of star Hugh Gallarneau as latter rests briefly after helping pile up lead on California, in season's regular windup.

Topping Says Sutherland To Keep Job

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (INS)—Dan Topping, youthful millionaire owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Professional Football League, was confident today that his coach, Dr. John B. (Jack) Sutherland would return next season.

Rumors have been prevalent that Sutherland would replace Francis Schmidt as head coach at Ohio State.

"Jack has a contract that has two more years to run," Topping said. "If he desires a change, I certainly will not stand in his way, but those rumors are absolutely unfounded."

Sutherland himself denied that he had been approached by Ohio State officials.

Topping also was confident that his stellar backfield artist, Ace Parker, would be back next year. Parker, however, has intimated he will give up football for a major league baseball career. He will accompany the Pittsburgh Pirates to spring training camp next year.

Behind Goal Posts

The Sugar, Cotton, Orange and Sun Bowl New Year's Day games are still cutting their teeth but the Rose Bowl has been an annual affair since 1916 when Washington State beat Brown, 14-0. . . Harvard recaptured New England's football prestige by edging Oregon, 7-6, in 1920. . . Rose Bowl games have been full of thrills. . . remember Roy Riegels' Corrigan stunt in '29 when the California center intercepted a Georgia Tech pass, lost his sense of direction, and ran over HIS OWN goal line? Ironically that 2-point safety was the tally that won for the boys from Georgia, 8-7. . . and the tingling 7-0 defeat that a lowly underdog Columbia pinned on a heavily favored Stanford in '34 by using the famous play "73"—WHIT CUSHING.

A pair of tickets smack on the 30-yard line, first of the precious pasteboards to be received in Boston for the New Year's Day Sugar Bowl Classic between Boston College and Tennessee—

That's the distinction which belongs to William A. Coker, manager of the Melrose Fruit Company, subsidiary of the United Fruit Company.

Coker, a resident of Boston since 1935, was born and bred in New Orleans and is proud of the fact that he was one of the original parties to get the famed Tulane Stadium started.

HAD TICKETS A MONTH AGO

As a bondholder, the Long Wharf executive is entitled to the choicest location. He got it and his tickets were received more than a full month ago.

Coker has become an enthusiastic backer of local football since he has made his home here and for years has been making every effort to have a New England college team as one of the Sugar Bowl principals.

Those who know the set-up generally credit Coker for having the Eagles named this year. He has followed their successes from start to finish and has constantly impressed Louisiana sportswriters and Sugar Bowl officials with the Eagles' worthiness.

Coker is authority for the statement that New Orleans football followers will adopt Boston College as their favorites and that the Eagles will have their loyal backing.

B. C. HOLDS SOUTH ESTERN

Furthermore he feels that the Eagles have more than an even chance of pinning a defeat on the Volunteers of Tennessee.

"Let Boston College display the same fight and spirit and all around greatness which marked its play against Georgetown and Tennessee or no other team in the country will prove superior," he said.

"I'm happy to know a great Boston College team will be ambassadors of good-will from New England. I feel certain the Eagles will continue to hold the respect and esteem they won from Southerners during their last New Orleans appearance against Tulane."

N. H. Gun Club Enters 4 Teams in Hearst Shoot

Among the latest batch of entries for the William Randolph Hearst Citizen's Marksmanship Competition was a league entry of four teams from the Piscataqua Rifle and Revolver Club of Portsmouth, N. H.

The entry represents one of the outstanding New Hampshire shooting organizations. It was filed by Secretary Walter B. Redden and was for the Piscataqua A. B. C. and D. teams which will shortly get underway its regular winter series of matches.

BEAT DEADLINE

Each and every one of the many members of the four teams pledged his oath of allegiance to the flag of the United States and certified his citizenship in United States.

The Narragansett Rifle and Revolver Club of Providence beat the deadline on the closing of entries for teams without league affiliations.

Secretary James E. Burke, of the Providence club stated that the club while not belonging to any league has shot and held its own against the best clubs in Rhode Island.

MAYNARD TEAM ENTERS

Another late entry found its way to the rifle editor of the American Record from Range-master Charles H. Bouton on behalf of the Maynard Rod and Gun Club.

However, let it be understood that entries for clubs which are members of leagues is still open and will be until December 16.

In other words leagues may enter the Hearst Citizen's Shoot for the next two weeks and all are welcome to enter.

Birthdays

Watertown's Panos family reduces birthday celebrations to an efficiency-plus basis, with three of five children having birthdays on the same day each year . . . which in 1940 happens to be today. So, all ready for a party . . . or almost ready . . . are Matthew, 9; Alexander, 1, and John Panos, 12. The youngsters say it's something like being triplets . . . without the handicaps.

Dog Freed

Sentenced to die for allegedly having bitten three persons, Brownie, pet cocker spaniel of Ruth Fucelli (second left) of Brooklyn, today had been granted a full pardon. The ruling was handed down by Judge Goldstein (right) after pleas by Atty. S. Kaplan (left) and Mrs. August Heckscher. Now, Brownie is back in the arms of his mistress after 18 months' separation.

Safe Ashore—Although remote from the war zone in Europe, Australian waters have been sprinkled with Nazi mines. Evidence of that fact are these survivors of a British freighter, which struck a mine in Bass Strait.
